

CIA Prosecution Possible

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford will make public Tuesday the Rockefeller Commission report on Central Intelligence Agency activities. He said Monday night he'll send it along with secret findings on alleged CIA assassination plots to the Justice Department for possible prosecution.

Ford told a nationally broadcast news conference he believes the report will restore the credibility of the spy agency. But he said, "I believe there can be internal improvement in the CIA."

And he said certain administrative actions will have to be taken as a result of some things he found on the report. But he did not spell these out.

Ford established the commission headed by Vice President Nelson A. Rockefeller five months ago after the New York Times published allegations that the agency engaged in a massive, illegal, domestic spying program against war protesters and other dissidents during the Nixon administration and even before that.

Answering questions of a session in the White House Rose Garden, Ford refused to second-guess any of his presidential predecessors about decisions which may have been linked to possible assassination plots.

Ford said he will not make public the commission's findings on the reported plots, which were said to involve such foreign leaders as Fidel Castro of Cuba and Rafael Trujillo of the Dominican Republic.

But he said he would, under procedures "that will be in the national interest," make the findings available to Senate and House select committees which are probing the CIA.

Ford said other materials being gathered by the White House also will be made available to the congressional probers.

On other topics, Ford said: —He is optimistic that the recession soon will "bottom out" and that "we will have a lot more good news than bad news."

—He will get Israeli Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin's assessment of the Middle East situation and discuss various options, including recommendations for reconvening a Geneva peace conference. The two leaders meet here Wednesday.

—East-West European Security Conference is "getting closer and closer" and could be held soon in Helsinki, Finland.

—The delayed visit to Washington by Soviet party leader Leonid I. Brezhnev hopefully will be accomplished this fall, when the President hopes a second strategic arms limitation agreement can be signed with the Soviet Union.

—There are a number of lessons that can be learned from Vietnam.

—He said the policy of keeping 38,000 American troops in Korea is "constantly under review." Ford said, "I believe it's highly desirable to maintain a U.S. contingent in South Korea. I think it's keeping the peace... and I think it's important that we stay."

On the CIA report, the subject of angry exchanges between reporters and White House spokesmen the past several days, Ford said "none of us should jump to conclusions as to events that may have occurred in the past."

With respect to decisions made in the area of political assassinations 15 and 20 years ago, "Under no circumstances do I want to sit in 1975 passing judgment on decisions made by honorable people," Ford said. "We shouldn't be Monday morning quarterbacks," he said.

As before, Ford said, "I am opposed to political assassinations, and "this administration has not and will not use such means as instruments of national policy."

Ford said that after he has further studied the commission recommendations he will send Congress "the necessary measures to insure that the intelligence community functions in a way designed to protect the constitutional rights of all Americans."

He also expressed his "deep personal conviction" that the CIA and other units of the intelligence community "are vital to the survival of this country." It is necessary that the United States "maintains the intelligence capability necessary for the full protection of our national interests," he said.

At a briefing earlier in the day, Roderick M. Hills, White House counsel coordinating various investigations of the CIA, told newsmen that the President would forward the material to the attorney general as soon as possible.

Sanford Accuses Ford Of Misjudging Economy

By DON WALTON
Star Staff Writer

Democratic presidential hopeful Terry Sanford Monday said President Ford's chief weakness is "his inability to cope with the (nation's) economic crisis."

And it is the state of the economy — both past and present — which will be the major issue in the 1976 presidential election, he told a Lincoln Press conference.

Sanford, president of Duke University, chairman of last year's Democratic national convention and former (1961-65) governor of North Carolina, was the fourth Democratic presidential candidate to visit Nebraska in the last four days.

A meeting with newsmen in Lincoln was added to a schedule with included appearances in Omaha, Norfolk and Nebraska City.

To Campaign Actively

Nebraska, he said, is currently on the list of primary states in which he expects to actively campaign next year. Others include North Carolina, Massachusetts, California, Oregon and New Hampshire.

Next May's primary allows him "an opportunity to prove I can campaign in all parts of the country," Sanford said.

"It's a good state for me to come into. Unless something drastic changes, we will be in this primary."

Sanford said it would "not be a wise decision" to attempt to "dash madly" through the thirty-some presidential primary states next year, but he hopes to make a showing of some sort in 17 to 20 of them.

Programs Said Failing

Ford's economic and energy programs fail to meet the nation's critical problems of recession and inflation, he said.

The income tax rebate was "a mistake," he said, since it only "adds to recessionary pressures" and Ford's $1 a barrel hike in oil import tariffs "runs the price up and adds fuel to the inflationary fire."

Sanford said he would have favored a series of programs last year, including public employment, to place "money in the hands of unemployed and low income people" before Christmas.

That money would have gone back into the economy and helped fight the recession, he said. Much of the money paid out in tax rebates this year will go into savings or to pay debts, and have less effect on spurring the economy, he predicted.

Coal Advocated

The nation's energy program should concentrate on conservation and development of coal and other fossil fuels as short-term answers, while seeking long-term solutions through the discovery of alternative sources of energy, he said.

Asked to identify Ford's strengths, Sanford shrugged. "He's better than his predecessor."

Sanford predicted that Alabama Gov. George Wallace "will not be very influential" in the eventual national convention decisions choosing next year's Democratic ticket.

Last year's mini-convention, he said, helped demonstrate that the party "could be unified (and) work in a spirit of harmony and good will."

It also succeeded in "bringing back" to the party some of its members who had become alienated, either at Chicago in 1968 or Miami Beach in 1972.

As for Sanford's chances in the Democratic presidential derby, he pointed to "an asset" not shared by some of the other candidates.

"I haven't been in Washington these past years," he pointed out, and there is a feeling in the country that "old Washington approaches are worn out" and the time has come for "fresh ideas."

Auditors Confirm Reports Outstate Accounts Left Idle

By BOB GUENTHER
Star Staff Writer

The state has not been investing all of the idle funds it might, state auditors confirmed Monday.

An audit, which covered the last four years of former State Treasurer Wayne Swanson's term, zeroed in on excess balances, averaging $1.4 million monthly, maintained in eight outstate banks.

It also identified $27.6 million in outstanding, uncashed warrants held by six clearinghouse banks in Lincoln and Omaha.

Swanson, whose term spanned 1966-74, left office in January and was succeeded by Frank Marsh, the former lieutenant governor.

Steps Being Taken

Ray Fechter, system analyst for State Auditor Ray A. C.

Johnson, said Marsh is taking corrective steps suggested in the audit.

During the audit period, the number of outstanding warrants issued by the state rose from $20.9 million to $27.6 million.

Many of those warrants were two, five, even 10 years old, yet the funds to cover them remained in non-interest bearing accounts.

By law, once a state warrant, such as a paycheck or a bill payment, remains uncashed for two years, it will not be honored.

$13.7 Million Outstanding
According to existing records, the audit said, "the last time any outstanding warrants of the two-year category were written off was March 28, 1969. At that time, outstanding warrants totaled $13.7 million."

Auditors also found that some warrants over two years old were honored. Such warrants are supposed to be handled by the State Claims Board.

It was impossible to determine how many warrants were older than two years, auditors said, because no list of outstanding warrants was kept.

Hence, they said it is impractical to estimate how many dollars deposited to cover warrants could have been freed for investment.

State Accountant George Shute has estimated $22 million in outstanding funds has not been invested.

"That's The Question"
Asked why so much money is outstanding, Fechter said, "That's the question we're asking." Some undoubtedly has been lost or forgotten, but how much is not known.

Turning to the eight depository banks outstate, the audit said the balances kept were well over the amounts needed to conduct business.

"Assuming an average balance of $10,000 is sufficient to maintain the accounts, then $1.4 million could be freed for investment purposes. Assuming a 7½% return on investments, the state could realize $105,000 in interest income," the audit said.

Here is a listing of the banks and the average monthly excess balance held in non-interest bearing accounts:

First National Bank, Wayne — $56,275
Bank of Peru, Peru — $46,560
City National Bank, Hastings — $108,989
Platte Valley State Bank, Kearney — $285,689
Beatrice National Bank, Beatrice — $501,472
DeLay First National Bank, Norfolk — $106,000
Guardian State Bank, Alliance — $192,924
Bank of Chadron, Chadron — $148,459

The audit said only a $10,000 balance was needed to cover each of those accounts.

MILLAR... concedes 'serious error.'

Northrop Admits Bribing 2 Saudis

Washington (UPI) — Conceding a "serious error of judgment," the Northrop Corp formally acknowledged Monday it made $454,000 in indirect payments abroad to bribe two Saudi Arabian generals and an Iranian tax assessor.

Richard W. Millar, a top official of the aerospace firm, also told a Senate foreign relations subcommittee that the company additionally paid out $15,000 to an Indonesian agent "to make a gift to an Indonesian politician" in the course of its sales promotion abroad.

Millar, who willingly said he was taking "his full share of blame," emphasized that the corporation's own self-investigation had not fully determined whether a bribe had actually been extended to the unnamed Indonesian politician.

However, Millar, a member of the board of directors and chairman of its executive committee, offered the company's "public apologies for an embarrassment caused by this matter" to the government of Saudi Arabia.

During the course of three hours of testimony, Millar revealed that Northrop's own self-examination has been hindered by its inability to pin down the end-use of its various indirect overseas payments.

Millar, in his prepared statement, and in an "interim report" on questionable activities committed by Northrop, gave these details:

—Northrop paid out $450,000 to Triad Financial Establishment, the company's agent in Saudi Arabia, to bribe two Saudi Arabian generals who were influential in the conclusion of sales.

—Northrop paid $4,400 for an Iranian tax official to liquidate a minor 1972 tax dispute.

But Millar said Northrop never maintained a $30 million "slush fund," nor ever paid out sums approaching $30 million for improper or illegal purposes.

The Northrop "interim report," however, showed that a number of payments remain unclear, including sums totaling $4,400 disbursed by Glenn Lord, then president of Northrop Aviation Development Corp. in Bangkok, "to students for various studies."

Doctors Say Prison Will Disturb Patients

By BOB GUENTHER
Star Staff Writer

Mentally ill patients at the Lincoln Regional Center will suffer if a prison facility for evaluating new inmates is located there, two doctors said Monday.

Dr. Leonard Woytaszek and Dr. L. J. Baer, president of the center's medical staff, said the guns, the guard towers and the increased traffic will heighten patients' anxieties and impair their recovery.

They were among 150 people who signed a petition, delivered to Gov. J. James Exon last week, protesting plans to remodel the center's extended care building into a diagnostic and evaluation center for new inmates before they are sent to the Men's Reformatory or the State Penitentiary.

Fear For Safety
A number of Yankee Hill area residents fear for their families' safety if the facility is located at the center, and have asked Exon to place it somewhere else. Exon is still considering their plea.

Plans call for the state to advertise for bids on the remodeling in July. "The proximity of the (penal) facility will have an adverse influence on the mentally ill," said Dr. Woytaszek, a staff psychiatrist at the Regional Center who formerly practiced at the State Penitentiary.

"The increased traffic will make it difficult for them to have freedom of the grounds. The guns and guard towers will increase the anxieties of the people in the area."

Smuggling Problem

He said the additional visitors for the penal center will also increase security problems with contraband substances. Dr. Woytaszek acknowledged that there already is a security building at the center for the criminally insane.

The difference between it and the penal facility is that it does not have guns, towers and double fences.

"Our patients who are ill need supervision rather than control," he said.

He helped write the plans for the diagnostic and evaluation center when he worked at the Penitentiary, he said. Those plans envisioned the center next to the new Reformatory and away from the general population and schools.

Letter to Anderson

Dr. Baer said he wrote Dr. Jack Anderson, then director of public institutions, and Ben Simmons, center administrator, in December 1973 on behalf of the center's medical staff.

"We felt the (penal) facility was a fine idea, but we felt they were planning it for the wrong place," he said.

"Frankly, I don't think they (the patients) would like it. They would find it very upsetting to be mixed with the felon population," he said.

A chief concern is whether the penal center will use the same laboratories used by the mental patients for examinations, he said.

"If they were completely separated, it would be a little better," Dr. Baer said. Plans call for some sharing.

Simmons said he passed Dr. Baer's letter along to Dr. Anderson, who apparently disagreed and approved locating the penal center at the regional center.

Both Simmons and Dr. Baer said they don't remember ever hearing a word about the letter from Dr. Anderson.

Sen. Clark To Accuse Grain Exporters

WASHINGTON (AP) — The major grain-exporting corporations may be directly involved in an alleged scheme to skim off grain from overseas shipments, Sen. Dick Clark, D-Iowa, said Monday.

Clark, in a speech prepared for delivery in the Senate Tuesday, said that he had "learned of a pervasive system of 'bonus' payments to grain elevator operators who hold excess grain that goes unreported."

The grain later is resold at 100% profit, Clark said.

"Many of these operators are full time employees of the major grain-exporting companies. As I understand the practice, a company owning the elevator will pay its operators an annual bonus for grain that they have been able to save by 'shaving' on reported shipments," he added.

The Kansas City Star and the Des Moines Register reported earlier this month that statistics for grain shipped to and from New Orleans in the 1973-74 season showed 115 million bushels more being shipped out than was brought in from farms, he noted.

Two Senate subcommittees, the Justice Department, grand juries in Houston and New Orleans, the Agriculture Department and the General Accounting Office currently are involved in investigations of the U.S. grain trade.

Twenty grain inspectors — private employees licensed by USDA — have been indicted. Five have pleaded guilty to accepting bribes for approving shipments that did not meet federal quality standards.

"We already know that import grain-shipping companies and elevator operators paid the bribes, often laundered through middlemen. Some of the elevators are owned by the world's principal grain-exporting companies," Clark said in his speech.

Beyond the bribes, Clark said, such other allegations as the bonus system have "even more serious implications."

He called on the USDA Office of Audit, to undertake "a prompt and comprehensive audit of port authorities and terminal elevators where U.S. grain is exported and to report to Congress on their findings, particularly a comparison of grain reported sent into the elevators and grain reported sent out."

Clark also said that Secretary Earl L. Butz and his predecessor, Clifford G. Hardin, should explain why their inspectors general have not been told to follow up on foreign buyers' complaints of misgraded, missing or "short-weighted" shipments of grain.

Iowa History Slated

Washington (UPI) — Joseph F. Wall, professor of history at Grinnell College, has been commissioned to write a history of Iowa for an upcoming bicentennial series.

Welfare-Unemployment Choice Given To Needy

Washington (UPI) — The Supreme Court ruled unanimously Monday that needy parents thrown out of work may choose between unemployment compensation and child welfare aid — the latter being higher in most states that provide both.

The opinion comes at a time when the unemployment rate is 9.2% of the national work force, and could boost benefits for millions of persons.

Justice William H. Rehnquist wrote the opinion in the case, in which Vermont and the Department of Health, Education and Welfare argued that a parent must exhaust his jobless benefits before applying for welfare under the federally assisted aid to families with dependent children.

In addition to Vermont, states participating in the child-aid program are California, Colorado, Delaware, Hawaii, Illinois, Iowa, Kansas, Maryland, Massachusetts, Michigan, Minnesota, Missouri, Nebraska, New York, Ohio, Oklahoma, Oregon, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, Utah, Washington, West Virginia and Wisconsin. The District of Columbia also participates.

Figures presented to the Supreme Court showed that in 17 of those states, unemployment payments average less than benefits under AFDC.

HEW, arguing against the option, noted it would cost the state and federal governments additional millions of dollars a year.

Vermont had argued for the exhaustion requirement on the ground that unemployment compensation is paid for by employers based on a worker's service, while welfare is funded through taxes.

Rehnquist said it is up to Congress to change the law if it wishes.

In another unanimous ruling Monday, the Court held that the president of a food chain may be held criminally responsible for rodent pollution in a warehouse.

The opinion by Chief Justice Warren E. Burger said any employee "who execute the corporate mission" have a "positive duty to seek out and remedy violations (of food and drug laws) when they occur" and a further duty to ensure that violations do not occur.

It was a victory for the Food and Drug Administration, which has been engaging in a clean-up campaign in food storage areas as a result of consumer complaints and congressional interest.

The Burger opinion upheld the conviction by a jury of John R. Park, president of Acme Markets, Inc., who was fined $250 after federal inspectors in late 1971 and early 1972 found evidence that food in the company's Baltimore warehouse was rodent-gnawed.

The company itself, which has headquarters in Philadelphia, pleaded guilty.

In other actions the court:

— Agreed to examine a free-speech challenge to an Oradell, N.J., ordinance requiring any door-to-door solicitors, including politicians, to register with the police.

— Denied a hearing to four Miami men sentenced in the original Watergate break-in case who wanted to withdraw their guilty plea and get a new trial.

— Overturned a Maine law and ruled unanimously that the prosecution in that state must prove that the defendant did not act in "heat of passion" in order to obtain a first-degree murder conviction.

— Agreed to examine 1972 amendments to the coal mine safety act which require benefit payments to miners suffering from advanced black lung disease.

— Agreed to decide if prison inmates have a right to counsel and to remain silent during disciplinary hearings which could lead to criminal charges.

— Agreed to decide how far federal prosecutors must follow search warrant formalities in seeking microfilm bank records of potential criminal defendants.

Stop-Wallace Effort Denied

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — The Democratic national chairman and the new head of the nation's Democratic governors denied Monday there is an organized party effort to stop a presidential bid by George Wallace.

The statements were made by Gov. Philip Noel of Rhode Island and party chairman Robert S. Strauss after a meeting at which more than 30 Democratic governors discussed ways to increase their influence in selecting the party's 1976 presidential nominee.

The governors, meanwhile, formally opened their 67th annual conference. At initial sessions, spokesmen for the nation's states, cities and counties called for a new era of cooperation to make government at all levels responsive to people's needs.

They said states must increase their help to local governments, and they sought to agree on a revised energy plan to counter proposals being pushed by President Ford and the Democratic Congress.

However, an effort by the Democratic majority to discuss the energy bill currently pending in the House collapsed when solid Republican opposition prevented the necessary three-fourths vote for suspension of the rules. The energy question will be discussed by the conference Wednesday when it takes up policy statements.

Politics and the subject of Wallace kept crowding formal conference business — the discussion of governmental problems facing the states.

Noel said he wanted "to dispel the notion that Democrats are trying to stop George Wallace," despite criticism of Wallace for refusing to pledge support in advance for the 1976 Democratic nominee.

"I don't think we should shut him out or drive him away," Noel said. He called that "exclusionary politics" which could splinter the party's basic strength.

However, Gov. Wendell Anderson of Minnesota, whom Noel was elected to succeed, repeated that his pledge to support the 1976 party nominee is limited "to those willing to pledge in advance to support the nominee."

However, Strauss said, "I'm going to endorse and support" the party's 1976 nominee. "There is no concerted effort on anybody's part to stop Wallace," he said.

Further, USDA crop experts said the new estimate "assumes average weather conditions during the remainder of the growing season" for 1975 crops of wheat, corn and other grain.

"However, somewhat below average precipitation has been forecast for the main spring grain areas for June, and this could further reduce final grain output," the department's Foreign Agricultural Service said.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Hot, dry weather this spring has trimmed Soviet Union grain harvest prospects nearly 5% to an estimated 200 million metric tons, the Agriculture Department said Monday.

Two months ago, USDA projected the Soviet harvest at 210 million tons and Moscow had set a 1975 goal of 215.7 million. Despite the reduced outlook, a crop of 200 million tons still would be Russia's second largest.

The Soviet wheat crop, included in the over-all estimate, is expected to produce 95 million tons, unchanged from the earlier forecast. But the shortfall in other grains is expected to trigger some modest increase in Soviet imports in the coming year.

Means Accused Of Assaulting Officer

Bismarck, N.D. (UPI) — Russell Means, American Indian Movement leader who was shot and wounded in a scuffle with a Bureau of Indian Affairs policeman Saturday, was charged Monday with assaulting a federal officer, the FBI said in Minneapolis.

The BIA said Means, 35, a leader in the 17-day AIM occupation of Wounded Knee, S.D., in 1972, was shot accidentally on the Standing Rock Indian Reservation.

But Means said the BIA shot him in the back in an effort to run him off the reservation, where he had applied for a job to head a youth ranch. He said he bled for two hours in a jail before he was taken to a hospital.

St. Alexis Hospital said Means was in "satisfactory condition." Means said he was "weak and uncomfortable." But he said his doctor was pleased with his progress.

The BIA and Means told conflicting stories about what happened.

The BIA said officers had sought Means in connection with an assault on two persons in a bar earlier Saturday.

BIA officers said Lt. Pat Kelly, 45, was driving his son to work as a BIA police dispatcher and saw two cars and a pickup truck parked next to the Cannonball Bridge. Means motioned for Kelly to stop, the officers said, and asked Kelly why BIA police were harassing him.

Words were exchanged between Means and Kelly's son, Ted, the BIA said. Tom Poor Bear approached Kelly's son and Kelly drew his pistol, officers said. The elder Kelly and Means scuffled, the BIA said, and Kelly's pistol accidentally discharged, hitting Means in the abdomen.

Means said he was in a caravan of three or four cars on his way to do some roping and riding on the reservation. He said Kelly ordered the cars to pull off the road and got into a fight with Poor Bear. Means said he tried to break up the fight, was shouting "break it up, break it up," and Ted shot him in the back with a .357 pistol.

Means said the BIA claimed Kelly shot him because Kelly's son had no authority to carry a gun. He denied he assaulted anyone in a bar or that he was in a bar. He said the BIA "made that up to discredit me."

Shapp Says He Will Run

New Orleans (UPI)—Gov. Milton Shapp of Pennsylvania said Monday he will join a field of six other Democrats seeking the party's 1976 presidential nomination.

Although Shapp had indicated earlier he would run, the Pennsylvania governor came closer to a formal announcement by telling reporters at the National Governors Conference he would file with the Federal Election Commission and then go into a number of states to try and organize his campaign.

Shapp reportedly was planning to enter the New Hampshire, Massachusetts, New York and Pennsylvania primaries.

Rabin To Press Ford

Washington — Premier Yitzhak Rabin of Israel, who will visit Washington this week, plans to press President Ford for an overall understanding with the United States on what diplomatic steps should follow in the Middle East if Israel and Egypt put aside differences and work out a new interim Sinai agreement. This appeared to indicate a shift in Israeli policy and was something of a surprise to United States officials.

Forces Left Months Ago

Western military sources said the military forces that Israel claims to have withdrawn from the Suez Canal region a week ago had in fact been pulled out many months earlier or, in some cases, had never been there. They said the Egyptian high command knew that the forces had been withdrawn earlier but decided not to challenge the claim because the Israeli announcement was considered a politically and psychologically important gesture.

Soviets To Give Notice

Washington — The Soviet Union has advised Western governments that it is willing to give advance notice of military maneuvers in a zone of Eastern Europe extending inside Soviet territory as a confidence-building measure toward improving East-West relations. A mutual commitment to give notification of troop maneuvers is to be incorporated into the final declaration of the European Security Conference.

U.S. To Sell Subs To Iran

Washington — A Defense Department spokesman announced that the United States plans to sell Iran three diesel-powered submarines that will help to give the Iranian navy the ability to operate in the Indian Ocean. The submarines, which are 24 years old, would be the first to be obtained by the expanding Iranian navy, which has already arranged to purchase six new Spruance-class destroyers from the United States.

FTC Charges 'Price Rigging'

Washington — The staff of the Federal Trade Commission has accused the American Gas Association and 11 oil companies of operating a natural gas reporting system that is "tantamount to collusive price rigging."

Oil Exporters Agree To Abandon Dollar

LIBREVILLE, Gabon (AP) — Ministers of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries agreed in principle Monday to abandon the dollar as the basis of their price structure.

The move would increase the price of oil to American consumers even beyond any new price level set by the ministers to go into effect after the OPEC price freeze expires Sept. 30. They are speaking about a 30-35% increase in the price of crude oil that is now about $10.40 a barrel.

Sources said that the ministers, despite initial hesitation by Iran and Saudi Arabia, reached basic agreement to adopt the International Monetary Fund's "special drawing rights" (SDRs). SDR units are based on 16 leading currencies.

Since the dollar has dropped against most major currencies, the switch would automatically force up the real price of OPEC oil.

The agreement was announced after a three-hour meeting on the first day of the OPEC ministerial conference.

Mohamed Yaganeh, governor of Iran's central bank, told newsmen:

"There is basic agreement that in order to smooth fluctuations in exchange rates, the SDR would be more suitable than other proposals."

The change had been recommended by OPEC's economic commission after its meeting here last week. Details of the change were still being discussed by OPEC economic experts.

In addition to adopting the SDR standard, several delegates said the meeting here is also expected to set higher oil prices when the price freeze ends.

Yeganeh said the OPEC countries were determined to recover the 35 per cent loss in their incomes that they suffered through monetary erosion since the freeze went into effect in January 1974.

Some economists say there is no substantial evidence to show that the oil producers have in fact suffered such a loss in real earnings.

The OPEC ministerial meeting opened with calls for world talks on all raw materials, including oil, and with sniping from the wings at the United States.

Speaking to newsmen outside the session, Algerian Industry Minister Belaid Abdessalam said Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger was responsible for the collapse of preparatory talks in Paris last April for a world raw materials conference.

Abdessalam reiterated that all raw materials must be discussed simultaneously, but he added two other conditions for resuming the dialogue: the United States and the industrialized countries must declare their readiness to accept a system of indexing prices which "allows our purchasing power to progress regularly," and the United States must drop its objections to a reform of the world monetary system.

Breeder Reactor De-Emphasized

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Ford administration announced Monday a shift in emphasis from the controversial "breeder reactor" back to conventional atomic power, and said private industry might get a chance to participate in nuclear fuel enrichment.

Commerce Secretary Rogers C. B. Morton told reporters, "I think we will see some decisions by the President in short order" on the question of the fuel enrichment, now conducted only by the federal government.

The still-experimental breeder reactor, designed to produce more atomic fuel than it uses, has been heavily promoted by the government as a second-generation atomic plant that would stretch the nation's nuclear fuel resources until such advanced new systems as fusion power or solar energy can be developed.

But Morton said the breeder reactor may not become commercially available until "the 1990's or the turn of the century," by that time, solar or fusion power might well become real competitors.

Morton said the need for new emphasis on conventional atomic reactors was the primary topic last weekend, when the cabinet-level Energy Resources Council, which he heads, met at the President's Camp David retreat in Maryland.

Morton invited reporters to breakfast Monday and began describing the shift in nuclear policy as soon as he was asked about the Camp David meeting.

Morton said hundreds of conventional atomic plants will be built in the United States and abroad, and improvements are needed in the handling and safeguarding of nuclear fuels, the storage of radioactive wastes and the standardization of plant designs.

He said the new emphasis may mean some shift of federal funding from breeder research to conventional atomic research.

Along with this, Morton said, is the question whether fuel-enrichment for conventional plants should remain entirely in government hands, or whether it should be performed partly or even entirely by private industry.

Conventional nuclear plants, their reactors cooled by ordinary water, can use as fuel only a rare form of uranium, a radioactive metal mined from the earth.

The breeder reactor would operate at higher temperatures, its core cooled by molten sodium which can burn spontaneously on contact with water; while generating electricity, the breeder would convert a far more plentiful form of uranium into plutonium, useful as atomic fuel.

Gulf, Sun Oil Raise Price

NEW YORK (AP) — Two oil companies raised their wholesale gasoline prices by two cents per gallon Monday.

Sun Oil Co. and Gulf Oil Co. said the increases were in line with Federal Energy Administration provisions permitting them to pass along increased costs.

The two-cent hikes will be effective automatically at company-owned stations and will most likely be passed along to motorists at other stations.

Smoke Kills 11 At Jail

SANFORD, Fla. (AP) — Eleven persons, most of them inmates trapped behind bars and screaming for help, died Monday when smoke from a smoldering fire swept the Seminole County Jail, officials said.

At least 34 others were injured and admitted to area hospitals. "Workers in the county courthouse next door said they heard prisoners banging on the walls," said Bill Reck, one of the first persons on the scene.

"The smoke was terrible, terrible," said Sanford Fire Chief George Harriett, who led firemen up to the jail's second floor where inmates were trapped in locked cells. "If you didn't have a gas mask you couldn't survive up there."

Capt J.Q. Galloway, jail shift commander at the time, said without elaboration, "There are certain earmarks that point toward arson." He said state fire marshals were investigating.

At least one of those reported dead on arrival at area hospitals was a corrections officer. Officials withheld identification of the victims pending notification of relatives.

Harriett said the blaze started in a mattress in a hospital cell, and spread to an adjoining storage room where piles of mattresses were kept. He said the fire was small and contained, but huge billows of suffocating smoke and fumes quickly spread through the facility.

Arms Deal A Plus

It is easy to understand the disappointment of France in failing to sell its Mirage fighter jet to the consortium of four NATO allies which decided instead to buy the American F16.

Announcing its disappointment and lamenting the decision as "deeply regrettable," French spokesmen went on to say that the agreement among Belgium, Denmark, Norway and the Netherlands to contract with America's General Dynamics Corp. for over 300 of the F16s valued at some $2 billion raised doubts about the desire of Belgium and its partners to construct a united Europe.

Even over here in the American hinterlands, one can guess that the decision was not based so much on reluctance to construct a united Europe as it was on a business judgment that General Dynamics offered the best plane at the best price plus the fact that the U.S. State Department sweetened the deal with promises of purchases of consortium products by this country. It was a deal they would have been foolish to refuse.

If politics had been paramount, it seems to us the Mirage would have won in a walkaway, with the world reputation of the United States now as sullied as a punch-drunk pug's on the way down and with most of our supposed allies warming to just about any anti-American sentiment expressed.

But, as we said, it apparently was a case of the American firm coming up with the most attractive offer — a tribute to the traditional quality of American technology and salesmanship. And if that sounds somewhat shopworn, it is still a welcome recognition of American ability at a time when the U.S. economy is stagnant and the reputation of our currency is as damaged as that of our foreign policy.

The so-called "arms deal of the century" — a contract which could lead to sales to other countries reaching $12 billion — is a coup for the U.S. and an economic boon to General Dynamics and Fort Worth, Texas, where the F16 production facility is located, and to the American aeronautics industry in general.

And we don't think this boost to U.S. prestige and the economy is one bit tarnished because it involves tools of war.

There has in the past been some well-founded criticism of America's zeal to sell arms to people whose desire to use them increases with their availability. We have, at times, fed fuel to fires.

But if anybody has come up with a solid argument for not selling replacement aircraft to the western allies we have missed it, and probably wouldn't believe it if we heard it.

Breaking Out Of The Pack

As the nation's governors gather in New Orleans for their 67th annual conference, some of the Democrats among them are engaging in a game which could be called "Get George." It involves carefully speculating about Wallace's health, his alleged lack of shore to shore, border to border political strength despite solid backing in the south, and that he probably won't be nominated for either the presidency or vice presidency.

They are engaging in the game because obviously Wallace, because of a significantly large, worshipful constituency, poses a threat (whether it is a worse threat to the Democratic Party than to the Republican Party is debatable). And they are being careful because to denounce him or outright count him out, to call him a racist, a dummy or a cripple, as many doubtless would really like to do, would be to insult that constituency.

Republicans must be delighted to see Democrats now fencing with the Wallace problem, although ultimately they will also have to deal with the Wallace problem. But at present, with Gerald Ford riding a crest of popularity because of his handling of the Mayaguez incident, and ahead of Democrat star attraction Edward Kennedy in the Harris opinion poll, that time must seem like a long way off.

JAMES RESTON

Senate Policy Debate

WASHINGTON — The Senate didn't come up with many answers in its recent reassessment of U.S. foreign and defense policy, but at least it tried to have a constructive and coherent debate, and it raised some startling questions.

— Since it was being asked to approve a $104.7 billion military budget, shouldn't it know what foreign policy this money was intended to support?

— Without the vast expenditures in Southeast Asia, why a $15.7 billion military budget increase, and three new divisions for the Army?

— What was the policy behind last year's decisions to sell $8.6 billion in arms to 136 countries, and provide military assistance to 51 countries?

— Did the security of the United States really depend on new military money for its economic and social stability?

Sen. Barry Goldwater also wanted to know whether there really was any security in "that beautiful bubble dream called détente."

The senators fussed as usual on priorities, on the mix between domestic and foreign expenditure, and on the validity of U.S. commitments all over the world, but they agreed across the board on the imperative need to review and debate all these questions in a much more orderly way than they had ever done in the past.

Sen. Alan Cranston of California, who pressed for this Senate reappraisal, struck the general theme, namely that the Senate was not adequately informed on the administration's policies, and seldom even discussed defense policy in relation to the over-all foreign policy of the nation.

What commitments do we have? he asked. What commitments should we have? What is our foreign policy, anyway? What defense posture, what weapons, what manpower, what overseas bases, and troops do we need to match and mesh with this foreign policy and to defend our true interests and our freedom?

The debate demonstrated that there is no general consensus in the Senate even on the safe level of atomic and conventional weapons or how they should be used.

Sen. Edward Kennedy of Massachusetts noted that the United States now has some 8,500 strategic nuclear weapons virtually in full deployment. These include 550 Minuteman III missiles, and 54 Titan missiles deployed in the United States. Also, 41 nuclear submarines with 600 Polaris-Poseidon missiles and nearly 500 strategic bombers.

How much is enough? he wanted to know. With 22,000 tactical nuclear weapons stockpiled around the world, he added, "the simple fact is that we have nuclear weapons in excess of our security needs."

Goldwater thought the relative strength of the U.S. armed forces to the Soviet Union was declining and that we needed not just three more Army divisions but the 10 more that the Pentagon really wanted.

The United States actually had fewer ships in the Navy now than in 1939, he said, and manpower had dropped from the pre-Korean level of 1,460,000 to a planned 785,000 this year.

"When the Army can talk about making 16 divisions out of 785,000 men," he remarked, "I think they are frankly looking at the ouija board." Besides, the Senate didn't really talk to the Joint Chiefs about what was really needed, he added.

The rise of Soviet naval power obviously troubled the Senate. "The Soviet Union, a land power," Sen. Robert Taft Jr. of Ohio said, "is building a formidable fleet. The United States, a sea power, is being surpassed by the Soviet Union in certain areas of naval power."

In the end, the debate came down to the familiar divisions over money for arms or money for the internal development of the nation.

"I am convinced," Sen. Walter Mondale of Minnesota said, "that the basic source of American power to deal with these issues lies in the ability of the American people and their government to . . . manage a growing and vibrant economy, to be first in the world in technological innovation; to lead the world in efforts to bring equality to all our citizens . . ."

"We have kept our military machine polished but have let our cities decay, our transportation systems collapse, our national unity dissolve . . ."

It is noteworthy, however, that despite all the divisions over priorities, there was not a single argument for an American retreat into isolation. This was a serious if sometimes disorderly debate, but all sides agreed that a post-Vietnam, post-Watergate redefinition of power, and the uses of power were essential and that the Congress had to play a more active and regular part in finding a balance.

Sen. Jacob Javits of New York summed up the one point on which most senators in the debate agreed. The military budget had to be related to a clearly understood foreign policy, and it was too serious to be left to the Pentagon.

TOM WICKER

NEW YORK — The case of President Ford's so-called blue-ribbon commission to investigate the Central Intelligence Agency grows counerous and curious.

Why did Ford let it be known that he had picked a "safe" commission of establishment stalwarts who would not go beyond the commission's charter to investigate domestic misdeeds of the CIA, then ask it to look into charges that the CIA had plotted to assassinate various foreign leaders?

Why appoint a commission to investigate disquieting charges that the CIA had acted illegally, if not either to sustain those charges or to put them to rest? And that being the case, what is the point in announcing that the commission's report might never be published?

Does that mean the report is "too hot" for the public to handle? Or that it is too tame for critics to believe? Or that it could be used more effectively later on, during the presidential campaign?

Why did Vice President Rockefeller, the commission's foot-in-mouth chairman, tell reporters that the report would include a chapter on assassination plots, and why did the White House apparently reverse him on this point, if that is what happened? Was the deleted assassination material too shocking, or merely incomplete, as some sources claim? In either case, what will happen to it?

Why would Rockefeller lay himself open to charges of "whitewash" by saying that the CIA transgressions discussed in the report were "not major," when Chairman Frank Church of a Senate committee investigating the CIA could respond that he had "hard evidence" of CIA murder plots? A few conclusions seem safe to draw from this old record.

— At one stroke, in its handling of the Rockefeller report, the Ford administration has revived its reputation for fumbling and ineptitude, and created the suspicion that it is covering up something in the CIA investigation.

— Both Senator Church's statement and the administration's gingerly handling of whatever material the Rockefeller commission uncovered on the assassination question suggest clearly that there is substance to the charge that the CIA plotted to kill foreign leaders.

— Finally, it seems clear that if a report on this matter that will satisfy a suspicious public can be made, it is going to have to be made by one or both of the congressional committees now at work.

An establishment commission whose chairman is loyal to the administration, several of whose members served in past administrations, and which was set up at least partially to limit the damage investigation could do to the CIA, just does not have, and cannot attain, the required credibility.

Whether or not such credibility may be achieved by the congressional committees will depend greatly on their performance — NOT just on their findings. For that reason, Democratic members of the House committee are only being sensible when they demand that Chairman Lucien Nedzi step down or be ousted.

Nedzi is being insensitive or worse if he thinks he can conduct an investigation that will be seen to be thorough and fair, after it has been disclosed that he knew previously of many CIA misdeeds and did not report them to the House committee for which he was supposedly "overseeing" the agency.

Let us beware, above all, of reports from any source that say, "These things happened in the past but cannot happen again" — unless such a report carries with it concrete proposals, not just for more "oversight" by the administration and Congress, but as to the place in a democracy of a powerful secret agency, and how such an agency can be made accountable, if at all.

Congressional "oversight" will not work well enough, because the overseers can be too easily deceived, or — like Nedzi — co-opted. Executive branch oversight goes only to part of the problem; it cannot prevent those abuses and violations of law which may be ordered by the executive branch itself. The real problem for the investigators is to decide if the world situation any longer demands extensive secret operations by the United States and, if so, whether the demand is so great that only a massive, perhaps uncontrollable secret agency can meet it.

"Look, fella — Nobody's perfect"

JACK ANDERSON

The Nixon 'Deactivation' Cost

WASHINGTON — Richard Nixon had $33.35 left over, according to a confidential audit, from the $100,000 that Congress granted him to cover his transition expenses. He managed to stay within the allotment, however, only because the government generously didn't charge him for the big expenses.

For instance, the taxpayers were stuck with $265,580 in salaries for 54 federal employees who continued to work at the San Clemente compound. Among those whose salaries weren't charged to Nixon, as we previously reported, were his personal butler, maid, three chauffeurs and a medical corpsman.

In addition, eight Navy mess stewards worked at San Clemente during Nixon's adjustment to civilian status. The General Accounting Office, which conducted the confidential audit, offered this justification: "They were used primarily to dismantle the kitchen equipment," which had been installed for Nixon while he was president.

Nixon also should have paid rent for his office space at an annual rate of $77,470. But under the law, the General Services Administration could waive the rent. He was granted such a waiver last August.

Of course, Congress never expected the Nixons to pay the annual $622,000 cost of their Secret Service protection out of the transition budget. The GAO also decided that the government communications staff assigned to Nixon shouldn't be counted as a transition expense. Here's how Nixon spent the transition money.

— He shelled out $14,466.46 for office furnishings which, the GAO suggested happily, "can be recovered when they are no longer needed." Not counted were five color TV sets, which the White House Communications Agency declared surplus and left to Nixon.

— An astonishing $52,815.95 was spent for stationery. This bought "over 460,000 sheets, 280,000 envelopes and 20,000 each of three kinds of acknowledgment cards with envelopes." Apparently, Nixon was stocking up for the future, since most of the stationery is still unused. Another $12,000 went for postage.

— Nixon spent $75, according to the audit, to change his safe combinations. He also paid $896 for picture-mounting supplies. These miscellaneous expenses were listed, curiously, as part of a $9,430.37 expenditure for "record preservation and copying work."

— Another $6,505.30 went to pay for news service teletypes, telephone service and connection charges. Nixon wasn't billed, however, for the three courier flights that brought him security briefings, although "some passengers and some of Nixon's personal belongings were also on these flights."

— And $4,748.57 was paid out in "personal service costs." This category included detailed employees from various agencies and three people who were hired to assist them.

A separate, confidential report, prepared for House Government Operations Chairman Jack Brooks, D-Tex., discloses that it cost the taxpayers $118,076.93 to "deactivate" the Nixon compound at Key Biscayne, Fla.

An additional $124,041.36 was spent for the "disposal by demolition" of a security building that Nixon no longer wanted on his Florida property.

As part of the deactivation, the government spent $10,800 to remove bulletproof glass and replace it with plate glass windows, $6,604.57 to remove a screening hedge and $15,950 to restore the walls around the compound.

From all the Nixon property, the government now has in its warehouses $128,708 worth of bulletproof glass, a $65,770 security fence, a $314 seawall ladder, a $125.95 boat trailer and assorted items of furniture running into the thousands.

Some items have been transferred to other agencies. The Air Force claimed two Nixon beds worth $269.80, two golf carts valued at $3,030 and a five-gallon bottle stopper listed at $3.05.

The General Services Administration got Nixon's famous $621.50 icemaker, which produced square cubes "because the President doesn't like ice cubes with holes in them."

WILLIAM SAFIRE

Continuing Saga Of 'Slick Willie'

POSSUM TROT, Ky. — When master bank-robbler "Slick Willie" Sutton was asked why he robbed banks, his answer was a classic in purity of thought: "Because that's where the money is."

Sutton occupied a place of honor on the FBI's "Ten Most Wanted" list for nearly four years, from 1948 to 1952, before being picked up in Brooklyn. Not every law-abiding citizen was happy to see him caught, since there is an element in the American character that secretly roots for the fugitive.

In this generation, the fugitive being silently cheered on is Patty Hearst, who has eluded the most intensive search for nearly a year and a half. She is not even on the "Most Wanted" list any more; like the Duchess of Windsor and Mrs. William Paley, who dominated the ten-best-dressed-women's list for decades, Miss Hearst has been retired from the FBI's list and placed in superstar status.

Why do even law-and-order types get a surreptitious thrill out of one young woman's success in foiling the feds? Why was "The Fugitive" such a successful TV series for so long? Why, when we are protected by the hounds, do we harbor secret sympathies for the fox?

One reason, of course, is that we take a perverse delight in seeing authority frustrated by the individual, even when we believe authority is right and the individual wrong. There stands the vaunted FBI, with all those computers and eavesdropping devices and laboratories and clean-cut agents, being made to look foolish by one girl and her underground allies.

'SLICK WILLIE' SUTTON

PATTY HEARST

Underneath that is a turning toward privacy that many of us have — usually unnoticed, seldom admitted — that makes us apprehensive of the hunter even as we demand the apprehension of the hunted.

The United States is the easiest place in the world in which to disappear. No other society in the world gives the fugitive such an opportunity. When assassin James Earl Ray fled to England, he was picked up within three months; if Patty Hearst is in Kowloon or Timbuktu, she is likely soon to be gathered in.

That is because the United States has not yet become a papers-and-documents society. In many countries, permits are needed to travel; papers are needed to change jobs; identity cards are issued regularly and checked carefully; the arm of the law is long and strong because a person out of place quickly attracts attention.

In the United States, such identification requirements as exist can be circumvented with ease. Want a phony birth certificate? Look in the obituary notices of the year you were born, find a young child who died, and apply for a "copy" of your birth certificate at any one of 15,000 vital statistics offices in the country. Because births and deaths are registered separately, you'll get one. More than a million illegal aliens hold jobs in the United States on this gambit alone.

Shouldn't we tighten our identity laws, make it tougher for the fugitives and "illegals" and make it easier for the FBI? The answer is no. Although the benefits to law enforcement are substantial, the cost of requiring "papers" — in freedom and privacy — is exorbitant.

These ruminations occur in Possum Trot, Ky., halfway between the academic center of Murray and the bright lights of Paducah, popcorn capital of the world. A fugitive could easily disappear among the upright outcasts of Possum Trot — and live a good life here, with nobody checking closely on movements or background — just as one could in Brooklyn, and more easily than in Kowloon.

As summer takes hold and schools let out, many Americans will be traveling again, fugitives from routine; many will voyage abroad to discover the red tape and documentation that afflicts other societies far more than our own. Every time we turn in our passports to a foreign hotel clerk for a police identity check, we make a small obeisance to tyranny.

I will be among those travelers for a month, since this is the time to "seal up the mouth of outrage for a while, till we can clear these ambiguities . . ." But one matter is not ambiguous: If protection of every American's privacy causes the FBI to take a little longer to catch Miss Hearst, the delay is worth it.

Why is the United States the best place for a fugitive? Because, as "Slick Willie" would say, that's where the freedom is.

REFUGEE WEEPS . . . Nam and wife, foreground, arrive with daughters.

S. Viet Leaves 22-Year Battle

By IVAN TRAVNICEK
Star Staff Writer

A man who has spent 22 years fighting the Communists is not about to stick around when the enemy takes over.

So he didn't. He and his family are now in Lincoln.

Nguyen Chau-Giam, 40, his wife Ta Que Hoa and three sons, ages 10, 9 and 3, left Ft. Chaffee, Ark., Monday under sponsorship of the Christian and Missionary Alliance. The South Vietnamese family will stay with the David and Marilyn Sundeen family of rural Lincoln.

Chau-Giam was a lieutenant commander in the South Vietnamese navy and was based out of Vung Tau, a coastal resort city near Saigon. He said he had always brought his family with him wherever he was based and when the end came, he loaded everybody on an LST and sailed to freedom. The LST, a large ship, was part of his command.

Chau-Giam commanded three river groups responsible for patrolling the rivers leading from the coast to Saigon.

"I cannot live with the Communists," so I left, he said. "I fought against them for 22 years."

Chau-Giam speaks good English. How did he learn? "I went to a lot of movies" when I was growing up and "the cowboys speak English very well."

He said he also had military training in the U.S. once in 1955 and again in 1972.

He said he left behind a brother, a sister and his mother in Saigon and his wife left behind two brothers and two sisters ("There was no way to get them out").

The first Vietnamese family to come to Lincoln arrived last week. Another family arrived earlier Monday in Lincoln.

The other refugees arriving Monday were Nguyen Ngoc Nam, his wife and five daughters. Nam was a Saigon businessman who ran a shrimp packing and export business.

The alliance is helping Vietnamese refugees associated with the Evangelical Church of Viet Nam.

Pastor H. B. Leastman said the alliance will be bringing at least 12 families to Lincoln over the next couple of weeks.

"I want to emphasize that no tax money is being used to help these people," Rev. Leastman said. All housing, food and medical costs are being taken care of by the church, he said.

Leastman is the pastor for the Rosemont Alliance Church in Lincoln.

He said the alliance is working with four companies in Lincoln to provide job training and placement.

LAP Board Decides To Buy Used Pickup

The Lincoln Action Program decided to go ahead with the purchase of a used pickup truck to be used in the summer youth employment program.

The board decided at the Monday night meeting that the cost should not exceed $500. About 30 days would be needed before the truck could be purchased and put into use, the board said.

The truck would be used to haul tools, such as lawn mowers and garden equipment, or young people without transportation to their jobs.

Also discussed at the meeting were plans to put the Headstart classes on a two-session-per-day basis for three days a week.

Vans will be purchased by the Lincoln Action Program to provide transportation for the children in Headstart, but the Lincoln schools will pay for all the maintenance and upkeep for the vehicles.

All the children are to attend classes at one school: Elliott, 225 S. 25th.

Missouri Reservoir Runoff Century's Greatest—Corps

Omaha (AP)—An Army Corps of Engineers official says the runoff above the Missouri River main stem reservoirs during May was the greatest runoff of the century.

Brig. Gen. P. T. Boerger, Missouri River division engineer, says the runoff exceeded the previous maximum by nearly 20%. It resulted, he says, from the melt of extremely heavy low level mountain snow on upper reaches of the river and heavy rains over eastern Montana and the western Dakotas in late April and May.

Higher than normal flows into the river are expected over the next two months, Boerger says, because of above normal amounts of high level mountain snow cover still reported near the upper Missouri.

The corps will release above normal amounts of water from reservoirs through the remainder of 1975, Boerger says, in order to lower reservoirs to normal storage levels before the 1976 flood season.

Boerger says the Corps may reduce the release of water if conditions on the lower Missouri River appear to be leading toward flooding.

Western Film Costars Brando, Jack Nicholson

Los Angeles (AP)—Marlon Brando and Jack Nicholson will costar in "The Missouri Breaks," a western to be directed by Arthur Penn.

Robert M. Sherman is producing the film, based on an original screenplay of the West in the 1880s by Thomas McGuane. It will mark Brando's first movie since "Last Tango in Paris."

Penn has directed two previous westerns: "Left Handed Gun," with Paul Newman, and "Little Big Man," with Dustin Hoffman.

JACK COUPE

We are pleased to announce the appointment of Jack Coupe to the position of Sales Manager for Woods Bros. & Swanson's Country Club Plaza office.

Jack brings to our firm a high caliber of personal service and achievement. In 1974 he was chosen as "Realtor of the year by the Lincoln Board of Realtors. Currently he is serving as a Director of the Lincoln Board of Realtors and Chairman of the Multiple Listings Service Committee. His qualifications also include being a member of Graduate Realtors Institute G.R.I. for having attained a high degree of proficiency and professional competence in the study of real estate.

Jack and his wife Marilyn, who is also a realtor, have 2 daughters. He is a member of Blessed Sacrament Church, Knights of Columbus, and Sertoma. Jack was born in Auburn, Nebraska and attended Creighton University.

As Lincoln's oldest real estate firm and the third largest real estate organization, Woods Bros. & Swanson is proud to have Jack Coupe as a vital part of executive management.

Spokesmen Say Refugee Program Not Shambles

By The Associated Press

Spokesmen at Indochina refugee centers around the country disagreed sharply on Monday with a Senate report that called the processing program a "shambles."

The report, issued Sunday by the Senate subcommittee on refugees, said a significant number of refugees probably will remain in relocation camps for more than six months and perhaps a year.

Subcommittee Chairman Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., said that "drift and confusion mark the President's program and the activities of the Interagency Task Force and because of this, the resettlement program is scarcely off the ground."

"The report does not square with my sense of reality," said Richard Friedman, chief civilian coordinator at the Ft. Indian-town Gap resettlement camp at Annville, Pa. "I would say we're in very good shape."

Friedman said neither Kennedy nor any members of his committee had visited the In-diantown Gap camp, to the best of his knowledge.

A spokesman for the task force coordinating refugee programs said Sunday that 29,000 have left the camps, 54,000 remain in four camps in this country and 45,000 are in staging areas of the western Pacific.

At the relocation center at Eglin Air Force Base in Florida, a spokesman said things were running smoothly.

"We are processing these people as fast as humanly possible," said Capt. Robert V. Stone. "We have received no guidance as to when the camp will be shut down," he added.

At Camp Pendleton, Calif., one of the major reception centers for Indochina refugees, a spokesman said camp administrators had not seen the subcommittee report and would have no official comment.

"But we are battling better than .500 and working to step up the numbers released with background to make the transition to life in America," said Lt. Col. Arthur Brill, a public information officer.

China, Philippines Establish Relations

©The New York Times

Hong Kong — China and the Philippines signed an agreement Monday establishing full diplomatic relations.

The agreement, which was signed in Peking by Premier Chou En-lai and Philippine President Ferdinand Marcos, underscored the continued success of China's moderate foreign policy of recent years, a policy designed to win over the countries of Southeast Asia that have been staunchly anti-Communist for decades.

A joint communique issued Monday by the Philippines and China indicated that the Philippines had bowed to China's demand to break relations with the

Panel To Seek Details On City Tennis Center

By LYNN ZERSCHLING
Star Staff Writer

Tennis players rallied enough support Monday to get the City Council to look into the construction of a proposed tennis complex at Woods Park.

The lawmakers agreed to set up a six-member committee charged with ordering design studies and preparing a cost estimate and budget for the facility. The council nixed a proposal by tennis buffs to commit the city to paying a $48,000 bill for such studies.

Tennis committee spokesman Tom Allman, who last week proposed the city funding, agreed to the change Monday on the grounds that more information is needed.

'I Wonder What'

"There were just too many 'I wonder what's' to proceed," Allman said.

Committee membership would include two members appointed by the council, two by the mayor and two from the Lincoln Tennis Association.

Tennis fans are proposing that a private nonprofit corporation or the city construct the complex, which would be paid off by membership and player fees.

Six indoor courts, eight outdoor courts, a clubhouse and four practice walls would be added to Woods Park's existing nine outdoor courts. Estimated price of the complex is $950,000.

Robinson Dissents

Councilman John Robinson cast the only vote against creating the committee. Apparently Robinson cast his vote as a protest against the location of the facility, which proponents say would be used to instruct low income people in tennis as well as others. Robinson lobbied unsuccessfully for another location for the facility.

Councilwoman Sue Bailey failed to persuade her colleagues to make the committee directly responsible to the Parks and Recreation Advisory Board, instead of the City Council.

"It would be highly irregular to pass by the board," she said.

Not Spelled Out

Other councilmen didn't think that procedure needed to be spelled out since they believed Mayor Helen Boosalis could appoint someone either from the advisory board or park department staff as her representatives on the committee.

Wallace Rudolph, who last week opposed the venture, suggested that the city consider building a multi-purpose indoor facility.

Last week the lawmakers placed on its pending list an agreement with the nonprofit corporation to enter into a lease agreement to build the tennis center.

The creation of the committee, the council feels, would nail down exact costs, the design and determine how the bill would be paid.

Ernest Young

Policeman Recognized For Capture

Mayor Helen Boosalis gave special recognition to Lincoln policeman Ernest Young in special award ceremonies Monday.

Young was recognized in the mayor's office for actions he took last Thursday in capturing an escapee from the Nebraska Penal Complex.

Young, 27, a five-year veteran of the department, captured Michael Green without firing his weapon. Green, who led police on a wild chase Thursday, and who took a store clerk hostage, was captured by Young after Green emptied a revolver at the officer.

Young, who was not hit, did not fire his revolver, and was given special recognition for that action. The officer said there were children playing in the neighborhood.

City To Pay For VISTA Volunteers

The City Council indicated Monday it will pick up the $8,700 tab to bring two VISTA volunteers to Lincoln this fall.

The Community Development Department is applying to the federal government for four VISTA volunteers to work with neighborhood organizations and low-income residents in the city.

The federal government would pay $4,386 apiece for two VISTA workers, said Tom Ekvall, neighborhood development coordinator. The city presently has one volunteer working in the Clinton neighborhood.

Those two workers would start in July, while the two volunteers Ekvall wanted the city to pay for would begin this fall.

The volunteers would assist neighborhood associations in redeveloping their areas, help develop plans for the neighborhood and coordinate their efforts with the city.

Ekvall said additional costs, such as postage and mileage, would be incorporated into the Community Development Department's budget.

The council will take formal action on the VISTA salaries and departmental budgets this August.

Australia Foils Stonehouse Try To Flee Country

MELBOURNE, Australia (AP) — John Stonehouse, runaway member of the British House of Commons, was jailed Monday after trying to leave the country while extradition proceedings were pending against him.

Federal police took Stonehouse in custody at an airport as he waited for a flight to England where he is charged with theft, fraud and forgery involving more than $100,000.

In London, the House of Commons is set to debate Thursday on a motion to expel Stonehouse from Parliament.

Public Market Proposal Approved

Lincolinites can go to market and walk away with home-grown produce and homemade articles in an open air vegetable market thanks to the City Council.

The lawmakers gave the Downtown Lincoln Promotion Council (DLPC) the green light Monday to set up a public market on 12th St. between N and O on Saturdays.

The DLPC will allot stalls and issue permits to people who wish to sell produce and homemade articles.

Parking Revenue

Under the agreement, the DLPC also will have to pay the city the equivalent of the day's parking meter revenues from 12th St., since the street will be closed.

The market should get underway either the 1st Saturday in June or in early July.

In other business, the council authorized the Community Development Department to use eminent domain proceedings if necessary to acquire land in the Centrum block.

The action was required as one of the steps outlined in the redevelopment act, under which the city is proposing to build a parking garage and retail facility in the block from N to O, 11th and 12th.

Already Buying 5

The city already has negotiated for the purchase of five properties in the block and is hoping to buy the remaining businesses without condemnation proceedings.

Last week the council informally committed itself to putting some $400,000 to $500,000 more in the Centrum land acquisition fund since it is apparently costing the city more money to buy the land than anticipated. The city had budgeted $2.7 million for land acquisition.

In further action, the council referred the request of the Lincoln Action Program (LAP) for more money of City-County Human Services Administrator Bob Clark for a recommendation. LAP is seeking $11,625 in revenue sharing funds to subsidize the attendance of low-income youth to various summer camps.

The lawmakers also held a hearing on developer Karl Witt's application for several zoning changes to subdivide land at 20th and Fairfield for moderately priced, single family housing.

Formula Cheaper

Witt said his homes would cost between $20,000 and $25,000 if

Eight To Enter Talented Teen Contest Friday

Eight young women from Lincoln will represent the city in the Miss Talented Teen Pageant and Review, which will be held at 7:30 p.m. Friday in the Peony Park Ballroom, Omaha.

Sponsored by the Malone Community Center, the local teenage contestants include: Carol and Shirley Brooks, daughters of Loyce Brooks; Denise Ballard, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Harold; Audrey Allen, daughter of Mrs. Joyce Kennedy; Regina McWilliams, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alandar Walker; Roslen Miller, daughter of Willene Miller; Valerie Stubblefield, daughter of Mrs. Olelia Stubblefield, and Robin Ginger, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Ginger.

The event is open to young women, 17 years old or younger. Contestants will be judged on their talent presentations.

Savings Deposits Up

Geneva, Switzerland (AP) — The International Savings Banks Institute (ISBI) said savings deposits increased substantially in virtually every part of the world last year despite the recession.

the city approves his method of subdividing the land. The planning department's subdivision formula would add an additional $700 a lot to the price, he charged.

The council is scheduled to act on the zoning changes next week.

The council also appointed Councilman Bob Jearmby to the Parks and Recreation Advisory Board, replacing Helen Boosalis, who was elected mayor.

The council also appointed Councilman Dick Baker to the City-County Board of Health, replacing Max Denney.

In other business, the council:

Arrow Airport Purchase Taxis On Council Runway

A proposal to turn over Arrow Airport to the city got only half off the ground Monday when city fathers said they weren't sure if they wanted to buy the entire airport.

A majority of the City Council instructed City Atty. Charles Humble to negotiate with the landowners in an attempt to purchase only a part of the 145-acre tract.

Airport owners, the Kite

Estate, has offered to sell the ground to the city. The airport lies to the west of the city landfill on N. 48th St. — the site of Lagoon Park and future home of "Mt. Trashmore," a proposed ski slope.

The airport would be added to the city's park greenbelt system and provide additional landfill space, city department heads said.

Public Works Director Bob Obering said the city is gobbling up the 550-acre landfill site faster than anticipated. In five years there will be no more room.

Purchase of the airport would help alleviate that space problem, Obering said, as well as preventing future legal entanglements.

Roper Lake, which lies to the north of the airport, is a marshy area, complete with numerous native grasses, wild birds and animals. The city owns the northern two-thirds of the lake, while the airport owners own the southern third.

If the city ever wanted to do some drainage work in the area, Obering said the city could run into a problem with the private landowner.

Parks and Recreation Director Don Smith lobbied to preserve the native grassland and animals around the lake. In order to preserve the area, he and Councilwoman Sue Bailey suggested that a buffer area should be created around the 30-acre lake.

Another problem could occur if another airport operator fixes up the airport. In time, Obering said, the department's dragline could become a hazard by extending into the flight path of circling airplanes.

Council members said they weren't sure they wanted to spend the money to buy the entire airport, but said they wanted more information on the possible land acquisition.

Mayor Helen Boosalis has indicated she favors the land purchase.

Trademark Is Secret In Gubernatorial Race

By PATTY BEUTLER
Star Staff Writer

Sue Conley's got the secret of being elected Girls State governor — red hair!

"It gave me a trademark," the braided, red-head revealed.

She campaigned as "Sioux" Conley, adding a red-inked face and two braids to the "o" in her last name.

Name recognition is the name of the game when there are more than 370 girls meeting for the first time. "You must sell yourself, not the issues, because there's such a short-time to campaign," the new head of state determined.

A senior at Omaha's Westside High School, Sue hadn't considered running for office until the second day's activities. Once she got involved, though, she succumbed to the election fever.

Needless to say, Sue was "ecstatic" about winning.

"I can't get used to the standing ovations," this publicity-shy state leader confided. "I feel glad the girls put their confidence in me, but I keep feeling humble."

During the campaign, Sue had to address the whole group. "I got really scared before I did it, but when I got up there the faces looked so encouraging." Although she had prepared a written speech, she found it much more natural to "just get up there and talk."

Asked about abortion in the gubernatorial debate, this candidate declared that the issue was a moral one and should not be discussed in this political arena. The girls applauded her with a standing ovation.

Watching city kids and country kids work together in the legislative process has been an eye-opening experience for the urban-oriented Girls-Stater. Now she understands why it takes the real Legislature so long to get things done. But she would never give up local representation for the sake of speeding up the law-making process.

"Even if we don't have time to solve all the state's problems, we've been exposed to the small-town, big-town, eastern, western problems," Sue said of the mock sessions.

More than half-way through the Girls State experience, Sue's already doubled her respect for the democratic system.

But she shouldn't sell herself short either. She was elected on more than just her red hair. Maybe it was the freckles.

GOV. CONLEY . . . won by a red hair.

Mitzner Released By Judge, Advances Theory About Killing

The husband of slain coin shop manager Marianne Mitzner was released from the City Jail Monday to care for his 12-year-old son.

Ken Mitzner's four-month sentence on a charge of receiving and selling stolen coins across interstate lines was suspended by U.S. District Judge Robert V. Denney.

Denney did not lift a four-year probationary period and moved payment of a $10,000 fine up from Dec. 6, 1976, to Dec. 6, 1975.

'Only Thing To Do'

Denney said he felt his signing the order, sought by Mitzner's attorneys, was the "only compassionate thing to do, since there is a 12-year-old boy involved and his mother is dead."

Mitzner, 51, who received the news of his 50-year-old wife's killing while in jail last Friday, said he thinks his wife died to save their son, Monte.

The body of Mrs. Mitzner, bound, gagged and shot in the head three times, was found late Friday morning by the Mitzners' son.

get the robber out of that store before Monte arrived."

Panicking, the robber went back and shot her before fleeing, he said.

'Told Not To Resist'

"I think it probably started as a normal holdup," he said. "This woman was cool and level-headed. We always talked over the danger in running that coin shop. I told her not to resist if there was a holdup, just to get a good look at the person."

The chief suspect in the Friday morning shooting is still a 45 to 50-year-old black man, reportedly seen in the Mitzner Rare Coin Shop twice last week.

The chief suspect is described as having a mole or growth in the left side of his chin and was wearing a large diamond ring.

Police have not ruled out a possible link between the death of Mrs. Mitzner and the April 1974 killing of Patricia Webb, according to the State Patrol a former undercover agent.

No Ruling Yet

Ballistics tests have shown that the bullets which killed Mrs. Mitzner were .22 caliber, but there is no positive opinion yet as to whether they came from the same gun that killed Miss Webb, according to Bernie McGinn, deputy county attorney.

Miss Webb was shot with both .22 and .25-caliber bullets.

Both women were bound, gagged and shot in the head several times, and police say there is also a similarity in the composite sketches of the Mitzner and Webb suspects.

McGinn, who is handling the investigation because County Atty. Ron Lahners is out of town for several weeks, has scheduled a daily 4:30 p.m. press conference to update the news media on the case.

Mrs. Mitzner's funeral has been scheduled for Wednesday in Lincoln.

Mitzner, a former bail bondsman, said he will reopen the coin shop within a week.

Hearing Aug. 25 On Coal Slurry Pipeline Plan

By The Associated Press

A controversial proposal to run a coal slurry pipeline under several hundred miles of western Nebraska land will be the subject of several public hearings, the legislature's Public Works Committee decided Monday.

The committee set Aug. 25 for a public hearing on LB147, the subject of an interim study being conducted by the panel.

The bill, introduced in the last Legislature by Sen. John Murphy of South Sioux City, would grant powers of eminent domain to firms that would transfer coal across Nebraska via pipeline.

A California firm, Energy

Transportation Systems, Inc., wants to build a 1,038-mile pipeline from Gillette, Wyo., to White Bluff, Ark. Coal would be crushed, then mixed with water from Wyoming and run through the pipe to White Bluff.

Big Springs Sen. Jack Mills said he wanted to have "at least two hearings outstate on this thing," because of concern expressed by some western Nebraska communities about possible effects the pipeline could have on ranch and farm land.

Those hearings apparently will be in October. A meeting of the council of State Governments will be held in Lincoln in late September, and senators said that meeting could provide an opportunity to discuss the pipeline with representatives of other states involved.

The committee heard brief testimony Monday from Donn Davis, an attorney for a local firm representing the California corporation.

Davis told the committee that ETSI representatives had met with Nebraska and Iowa utilities and discussed the possibility of also selling the coal to Nebraska concerns.

Water Law Seminar Planned In November

By The Associated Press

Public Works Committee members voted unanimously Monday to hold a two-day water law seminar in November.

Dates for the seminar, to be held in Lincoln, were left open.

Members said leading water law attorneys from Nebraska and other states and a representative of the state attorney general's office would be invited.

The decision to hold the seminar came at the interim organization committee meeting and stems from Legislative Resolution 83, calling for an interim study.

The committee's counsel said differences between the committee and Atty. Gen. Paul Douglas apparently have been narrowed on the subject of water rights.

Douglas' office earlier this year issued an opinion saying, in effect, that the "first in time, first in right" principle applying to surface water also applied to underground water.

Gordon Peterson, committee attorney, said it was his understanding that a review of that opinion by Douglas and his staff resolved some of the conflict the opinion created.

The recent Legislature approved a law which allows some restrictions on use of underground water in Nebraska regions that are determined to be water short.

In a related matter, Douglas revealed that he is trying to convince two expert water law attorneys to join his staff.

Douglas, who declined to name the attorneys, said he hoped to set up a water law division in his office.

Douglas said water law is one of the top issues facing his office.

He acknowledged that the governor of Wyoming has promised a court challenge of the Wyoming Legislature's decision to allow ETSI to use water from Wyoming's Madison Formation for the pipeline.

The Union Pacific Railroad and the Nebraska Railroad Association testified against the bill shortly after it was introduced by Murphy.

The railroads, who do substantial coal-hauling business, contend the constitution prohibits granting eminent domain to private concerns except for cases involving demonstrated public use. The coal slurry pipeline, they contend, does not fit that description.

Unemployment Pay Won't Be Given Teachers

Omaha (AP) — State Labor Commissioner Gerald E. Chizek said Monday he would deny an application for unemployment pay by teachers who do not work during the summer.

He referred to the Special Unemployment Assistance Act, approved by Congress last December. The act was designed to help persons who couldn't find jobs but had been unable to collect because they had worked for employers who didn't pay state unemployment insurance.

Chizek said teachers paid on a nine-month schedule in some states have begun collecting compensation.

"I don't think the law's intent was to pay teachers who are on summer vacation," he said.

State Denies Two Claims For Overtime Back Pay

The Exon administration has denied two former employees' requests for back pay for uncompensated overtime work, an official with a state labor group said Monday.

Roger Schulz, executive secretary of the Nebraska Association of Public Employees (NAPE), said plans are to appeal the denial either to district court or the State Claims Board.

Schulz has estimated that the state may have denied employees overtime pay totaling up to $10 million. State officials have acknowledged some isolated instances but discount those estimates.

Schulz said Exon issued a memo dated June 6 advising state agencies to provide employees with overtime compensation for the past fiscal year in accord with an attorney general's opinion.

The two employers involved in the test case have filed claims in excess of $5,000 for work performed while they worked in the state fire marshal's office. Schulz said most of their claim involves overtime worked prior to this fiscal year.

Clubs Council Slates Dance

The Lincoln Council of Square and Round Dance Clubs will "Swing Into Summer" with square dances to be held Friday and Saturday at the UAA Building, 13th and High Sts.

Friday's hours are 8 to 11 p.m. The dances will be held from 2 to 4:30 p.m. and 8 to 11 p.m. Saturday.

Shriner Denies Reported Remark

Grand Island (UPI) — Don Shriner, general manager of the Mid-State Project, Monday denied comments attributed to him by an official of the Audubon Society over diverting water from Nebraska to Texas.

During a meeting of the Mid-State Reclamation District's board of directors, Shriner said he had used the diversion example to point out that if Nebraska did not use its water supplies, other states might.

Shriner's denial was in a four-page news release responding to charges made last week by Ron Klataske, regional Audubon Society representative.

Klataske said that Shriner was putting out false information, claiming that Shriner had said a request to divert water from Nebraska to Texas was in the governor's office.

Gov. J. James Exon said no request existed and Shriner denied he made the comment.

In his prepared statement, Shriner said, "These obstructionists want all of the water for fish and wildlife, not caring if it continues to run out of the state, lost forever, not caring about irrigators and the agricultural economy so vital to every job in our district.

"They advocate floods to wash out the river for the benefit of the birds, not caring that in the course of such an event it also destroys agricultural lands, homes and business and has the potential of causing the loss of lives of persons of our district."

The Mid-State Project calls for taking water from the South Platte-Republican River basin and using it to irrigate land in Buffalo, Hall and Merrick Counties.

4 Iowans Named In Shoot-'Em-Up

Nemaha (AP) — Warrants charging destruction of property have been issued against four persons from Red Oak, Iowa, after random shots were fired from a car riding along the main street of Nemaha Friday night.

Damage was estimated at $3,000 to cars and buildings.

Those named were Roger E. Hudson, 19, and Robin Lee Allen, 22, who were being held in Sidney, Iowa, pending other charges, and Dave Haskins, 20, and Roxy D. Allen, 18.

Cotton Growers Use Herbicides

Austin, Tex. (UPI) — Texas cotton farmers are relying more and more on herbicides to take care of weed problems in their crops.

In 1974, more than 89% of the state's cotton crop was treated with one or more applications of herbicides, according to Dr. Dave Weaver, cotton weed control specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

Herbicide use was highest in the south plains of Texas, where more than 1.9 million acres were treated.

Lifescape

It Can Happen . . . Anytime, Anywhere

By LINDA OLIG
Star Staff Writer

Strange thing about cardiac or respiratory arrest — it can happen anytime, anywhere.

"More people die of sudden respiratory and cardiac arrests than all other deaths combined," says a Lincoln physician.

The often-fatal arrests can be brought on by bee sting reaction, blood loss or shock from an accident, heart attacks, electrical shock, near-drowning, a broken bone, strokes — the list is seemingly endless.

"But respiratory and cardiac arrest is the thing that kills them," the physician, who asked not to be named, says.

An elderly person collapses and falls to the sidewalk while waiting for a bus. Your neighbor comes in contact with a hot wire while painting his house.

When this happens, if you're like most of us, you head for the nearest phone and dial 911.

Some Go Into Action

But some Lincolniters — about 2,000 of them — can go into action immediately.

They aren't necessarily nurses or black bag-toting doctors. They are regular citizens schooled in cardiopulmonary resuscitation (CPR).

CPR is second-nature to them. When an emergency arises, they take over and apply the ABCs of CPR — developing an airway, breathing for the person, circulating the blood through heart compression.

After all, those first few minutes and seconds are of utmost importance where human lives are concerned.

Nationally, 600,000 people die each year of sudden respiratory or cardiac arrest.

"Once the public is trained" in CPR, "70-90% could be saved," compared to today's 20% survival rate.

Respiratory and cardiac arrests rarely take place in hospitals. People "are dying outside the hospital — most of them," the physician says.

Thus the need for regular citizens, the people on the highways, in neighboring houses, on schoolgrounds, in places of business to be trained in basic life support.

They are the ones who can and do save lives, he says.

Efforts are afoot here to entice business, industry and education to have their personnel learn CPR and, in turn, teach their co-workers.

Basic Life Support

Courses in basic life support are taught by the Lincoln Chapter of the American Heart Association, Cornhusker Chapter of the American Red Cross and Emergency Medical Crisis Services division of the State Health Department.

A move is underway to standardize the three programs which, despite a common goal, vary somewhat, said Chuck Elsom, safety programs director for the Red Cross.

So far, 92 Lincolniters have been schooled in basic life support through the Red Cross; 1,939 have been certified by the Heart Association.

The physician, who is active in the Heart

Association, is working with the Lincoln Public Schools to get CPR introduced into its already "jam-packed" curriculum.

Dean Austin, public schools' consultant for health and physical education, says CPR is taught in the required eighth-grade health education programs. Now the schools are assessing student and teacher retention.

"Anybody at the eighth-grade level is capable of learning" CPR techniques, the physician says. "They are mentally capable and have the required physical power."

Football Games

CPR training is responsible for saving the lives of the majority of people who collapsed while attending Cornhusker football games, he says.

"More than 90% of the spectators who collapsed" in the nine years that CPR teams have served vigil in Memorial Stadium "are resuscitated and lived to see another football game," the physician says.

Comparing the 90% survival rate at the stadium to the Mobile Heart Unit's 20% rate, the physician pointed out that, at the stadium, CPR is "carried out in seconds" by trained bystanders — doctors, nurses, Boy Scouts and others — while it takes "at least three to four minutes" for lifesaving teams to reach other crisis situations — unless a trained person happens to be on hand.

What he wants is to "make up the (time) difference by training the public" to fill in during those critical minutes. If "the brain is without oxygen . . . permanent brain damage usually occurs."

Legal Aspects

Lawmakers, lawyers and doctors are putting their heads together in Washington to consider the medical-legal aspects of CPR, but the physician is confident that persons using CPR in Nebraska are legally protected under the "Good Samaritan Act" which states that administration of emergency medical treatment is okay if performed in "good faith."

"People are reluctant" to pitch in in emergencies, "but at the present time there has never been a medical-legal liability suit registered against a rescuer" here, he says.

Opening lead - seven of clubs.

Whenever you're faced with an apparently impossible task, it pays to take some extra time to try to solve your problem. This is especially true in a grand slam, where the stakes are so big that you can't afford to overlook even a remote possibility.

North's four no-trump bid for aces was certainly reasonable, but his failure to inquire for kings was clearly wrong.

Superficially, seven no-trump seems hopeless, but actually South had about an even chance for the contract. All he needed for the grand slam to come home was for either opponent to have both missing kings. In that case, a legitimate squeeze could be developed against him.

South cashed five diamond tricks, followed by three more rounds of clubs, at which point this became the position:

North

When declarer now played dummy's nine of clubs, discarding a heart, West found himself in trouble. A heart discard would allow South to cash the ace of hearts and win the last two tricks in dummy, while a spade discard would allow South to cash the ace of spades and win the last two tricks in the closed hand.

West finally parted with a spade, hoping against hope that East had the queen, and South easily scored the rest of the tricks. So North's venture into the unknown succeeded, thus proving that some misbids occasionally pay off.

Helpful Hint Needed To Stave Off Drinking

DEAR ABBY: Do you have a paragraph or a phrase that would make me think twice when I am tempted to take a drink?

I am not a heavy drinker. In fact, I hardly ever drink at all, but when I do, it hits me hard.

I made a fool of myself again last night, and I am sick of it. I've done that only five times in my life, and it only happens when I am out with friends. The next day when I wake up, I have to depend on other people to tell me what I did.

If I had just one meaningful phrase to keep me from weakening and having a drink with my friends, I would carry it with me. A Bible is too big to carry around. I am 20. Thank you.

FOOLISH GIRL

DEAR GIRL: When you are faced with temptation, tell your friends that hard liquor is "poison" to you and that you cannot drink it. Then silently pray: "Oh, Lord, give me the strength I need right now," and quickly pour yourself a non-alcoholic beverage. After one sip, pray again: "Thank you, Lord, I made it!" Try it, and let me know the results. I care.

dear abby

DEAR ABBY: A letter in your column has caused me to drop my campaign to get the letter "q" removed from the dictionary and transferred to "k," where it belongs. I quickly discovered that I might be dead before anyone would even be interested.

Now I would like to start a campaign to get all people to quit using the phrase "made love" when they mean "had sex."

I am irritated beyond words when I read that "a couple met at a party, went to a motel and made love." It's an insult to the act of lovemaking! What they did was have sex. Love had nothing to do with it.

Before I risk wasting my time on this campaign, please tell me if you think I have a point.

VAL (MASCULINE)

DEAR VAL: You have a point, but whether it's worthy of a campaign raises another question. I plead not guilty. When I mean "They had sex," I don't say, "They made love."

Rain Improves Crop Conditions

Nebraska's crop conditions and outlook improved due to rainfall received over the state the past week, the State-Federal Bureau of Agricultural Statistics said Monday.

Corn planting is virtually complete over the entire state as was the case at this time last year, the bureau stated in its weekly crop-weather report.

With the exception of the Panhandle, cutworm infestations are reportedly causing corn damage and replanting has been necessary in some cases.

However, most areas, report corn is growing well, especially in irrigated fields. Nearly 70% of the counties reported corn condition as good or excellent.

Winter wheat is in mostly fair to good condition statewide, the bureau noted, with reports ranging from poor to excellent.

Rains improved the condition in some areas, but additional moisture is said needed.

To date, nearly 70% of the wheat has headed with the east central and southeast districts nearly all headed.

Alfalfa is in mostly good condition. Over 55% of the first cutting has now been harvested by farmers and dehydration mills. Alfalfa weevils continue to cause problems, mostly in the eastern third of the state.

Dry bean planting has begun in the western portion of the state and should be in full swing in a few days.

Topsoil moisture supplies improved during the week and are 33% short, 62% adequate and 5% surplus in counties reporting as of last Friday. Subsoil moisture supplies remain about 69% short, compared to only 16% short a year ago.

Pasture and feed range supplies are short in 54% of the counties. Continued rains are needed in many areas to revive the grassland.

Rainfall received throughout the state during the past week included

One-Car Crash Kills Woman From Columbus

Center (AP) — A Columbus woman, Mrs. Carol Brant, 22, died Sunday night in a one-car mishap on the Santee Indian Reservation. Knox County authorities knoed.

Officials said Mrs. Brant's westbound auto hit a concrete bridge abutment.

Her husband, Marian, and a passenger, Edward Taylor of Santee, were hospitalized at Creighton.

The death was the eighth in Nebraska traffic accidents over the weekend and hiked the state's 1975 road death toll to 130, compared to 143 on the same date last year.

Lottery In Terrytown Awaits Legal Ruling

Terrytown (AP) — Officials of this tiny Panhandle community have decided to wait before embarking on plans for a city lottery.

Village Atty Howard Olsen has recommended the holding action until anticipated legal action against Omaha's city lottery is completed.

Omaha officials hope to have their lottery going by mid-August but an Omaha attorney has said he will file suit against the lottery, and the law making city lotteries legal in the state.

Opponents claim the law is unconstitutional.

Voters here approved the institution of a lottery last year.

With the "very vague" Nebraska law concerning lotteries, Olsen said he is convinced that a major consulting firm will be needed to handle the implementation of a lottery, and that the state's statutes must be tested before large sums of money are invested in a lottery.

The biggest question is whether lottery tickets can be sold outside the city limits of Terrytown, or whether a consulting firm can be hired to help operate the lottery.

Omaha's lottery will be supervised by a non-profit organization.

Under state law, city's and towns may start lotteries for city betterment.

Father Imholte Returning To Fiji

St. Columbans (UPI) — The Columban fathers announced Monday the return of a Leigh native of the Island of Fiji to do missionary work. The Columban fathers said the Rev. Otto Imholte has served in South Sioux City at St. Michael's parish for the past year. Father Imholte went to Fiji in 1970 and returned to the U.S. last year to assume the South Sioux City post. He is the son of the late Urban Imholte and Mrs. Frieda Imholte of Leigh.

Saint Named Harlan Postmaster

Omaha (UPI) — The officer in charge of the Wahoo Post Office has been named postmaster of the western Iowa community of Harlan. The appointment of Robert W. Saint was announced by Charley L. Dickey, U.S. Postal Service Omaha district manager. Saint started as a clerk in the Council Bluffs Post Office and was reassigned to Omaha as customer services representative last June. He returned to Council Bluffs as officer in charge of that post office and was named to the Wahoo post last February.

Raccoon Causes Power Blackout

Schuyler (AP) — Many a Schuyler resident was late for church Sunday morning, after a raccoon caused the city to lose power for about one hour. Officials said the incident occurred very early Sunday. A spokesman for the Schuyler Department of utilities said the raccoon managed to find and come in contact with the transformer to the City. The jolt killed the animal, but it also took out the city's power. Power was restored about one hour later, but many residents with electric clocks found themselves an hour behind schedule when they woke up Sunday.

Tractor Power, Safety Day Set In July

Mead (AP) — The University of Nebraska's 1975 Tractor Power and Safety Day will be held at the field laboratory at Mead July 24. Dr. W. E. Splinter, chairman of the Department of Agricultural Engineering, said energy-saving equipment and practices will be explained and new hay handling equipment will be shown. The parade of tractors will include a number from Italy, Scotland and England. Demonstrations are scheduled in the afternoon.

USDA Service Award Goes To Wells

Chicago — Bob G. The award was presented during special ceremonies in Washington by Secretary of Agriculture Earl L. Butz. Wells, who serves as an investigator for USDA's Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service, coordinates investigations of possible violations of federal animal health regulations governing animals, poultry and their products as well as pets, and veterinary biological products.

Three-Day Weed Science Tour Slated

The 1975 Nebraska weed science tour June 24-26 will feature visits to research plots at Lincoln, Clay Center, North Platte and Scottsbluff. First-day stops will be at the Lincoln and NU South Central Station plots near Clay Center. The second day, the group will tour farmer fields using ecotallow practices and plots at the North Platte Station. On the final day, the tour will include stops at the Panhandle Station near Scottsbluff and the University of Wyoming research station near Torrington.

AT BERTRAND...the Revs. Gary and Jean.

Couple Preaches In Five Churches

By DEAN TERRILL
Southeast Nebraska Bureau

Bertrand — A husband preacher, a wife preacher, four churches in four different towns plus one in the country... It all sounds wholly — or is it holy? — chaotic. But the Revs. Gary and Jean Marsh, virtual newlyweds, have the unusual five-pulpit situation firmly in hand.

The ministerial couple is just starting a second year of serving United Methodist churches in Bertrand, Loomis and Atlanta, plus Mascot Bethel which is 14 miles southwest of Holdrege. Gary is also a part-timer at Holdrege.

After a year's experience, things are well organized. It's only occasionally now that they happen upon one another while motor-hopping around their Phelps-Harlan County parish.

Based in a pleasant Bertrand parsonage built only two years ago, the two alternate pulpits on a week-by-week basis. One Sunday it's Gary at Bertrand and Loomis, while Jean preaches at Atlanta and little Mascot Bethel. The next week it's vice versa.

"We also take turns making Sunday lunch, with the person preaching here getting home soonest and thus being the loser," said Mrs. Marsh, a 28-year-old native of Somerset, Mass., with appropriate Eastern accent. Her husband, 30, is from Manitou Springs, Colo.

The couple met at Iliff School of Theology in Denver and were married two years before their 1974 graduation. Gary was ordained by the United Church of Christ, Jean by the United Methodists.

Driving some 30,000 miles a year between them, the Marshes aren't particularly distressed by the travel. What does bother is the limited time for pastoral calling.

"People expect us to call together, but that's just impossible," said the husband. "And of course each church would like to have its own minister. The hardest thing we face is keeping the congregations reconciled to the multi-church situation."

Not counting the Holdrege church, which Gary serves on a somewhat different basis, they have the responsibility of some 370 members. Bertrand tops the list with 180, while rural Mascot Bethel has gradually dwindled over the years to a scant 35.

Quite in tune theologically, the ministers do serve up their sermons with different styles. Gary tends to be topical and bordering on the intellectual. Jean is "very biblical" in her messages.

Interestingly, the spouses almost never have the opportunity to hear one another preach. One recent exception was at Easter, when a change in worship times enabled Jean to walk in on her husband's sermon at Bertrand.

"I thought he did just fine," she complimented. "I didn't even agree with his own criticism that he's too wordy."

Interior Dept. Honors Omahas' Land Claim

Washington (UPI) — A review of a century-old land survey has convinced the Interior Department that the Omaha tribe is rightfully occupying good farmland in Iowa and interference by non-Indians has been prohibited, the department said Monday.

"The situation is one which could have led to needless violence and bloodshed," said Kent Frizzell, solicitor for the department. The department sought and won a court injunction to enable the tribesmen to occupy contested farm land in the Blackbird Bend area of the Missouri River. An injunction was issued June 5.

Frizzell said he expected government action that "will allow the Omaha tribe to take peaceful possession of over 3,000 acres of land that, in the opinion of the Interior Department, rightfully belongs to them."

Through a series of changes in the course of the Missouri River, man made changes, part of the choice farming land once part of the Omaha reservation became separated from the main reservation.

"After a number of studies and investigations reviewing an 1867 survey of the land, Commissioner of Indian Affairs Morris Thompson concluded that the land was part of the reservation," the department said in a statement.

The Indians took over in April but non-Indians who had been using the land went to court to oust the Indians.

The Interior Department asked the court to prohibit interference by non-Indians and also damages and past profits from those non-Indians who had farmed the land.

"This sort of dispute is one that ought to be settled in the courts, with the United States advocating the Indians' position."

Widow Of Russell Stover Dies At Age 93

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Clara Lewis Stover, 93, who with her late husband Russell Stover founded a candy-making empire, died Monday at her home in suburban Mission Hills, after an illness of about one month.

The Stovers founded Russell Stover Candies Inc., which now has 160 candy shops across the nation. Stover died in 1954, leaving an estate believed to total more than $1 million.

Mrs. Stover was not only a successful businesswoman but also a civic leader who led many charitable fund drives in Kansas City including the Heart Fund and the March of Dimes Mothers Drive.

As chronicled in a book written by Mrs. Stover, she met her husband in 1906 in an ice cream store in Iowa City, Ia. He was a traveling salesman for a tobacco company. Both Mr. and Mrs. Stover were raised on Iowa farms and the young couple tried farming in southern Canada but later turned to candy-making.

The couple's first financial success came when Stover met a youth in 1921 with an idea for a chocolate-covered ice cream bar—the Eskimo Pie. At a Des Moines money, and opened the first of

When Mrs. Stover became ill, the couple moved to Chicago where he became a salesman for various candy companies. Stover taught his wife how to make candy in their small apartment and she soon was producing enough to supply 16 stores.

At one time $3 million was offered to the Stovers for the rights to the Eskimo Pie but after several lawsuits and declining demand, they eventually settled for $30,000.

The Stovers reinvested their their "bungalow" candy shops in in Denver, Colo. Although beset with financial problems during the depression, the Stovers continued and expanded their business to become one of the recognized leaders in the candy industry.

The Stovers eventually moved their headquarters to Kansas City in 1931.

Survivors include a daughter, Mrs. Gloria Mazuer, of Virginia Beach, Va., and three sisters.

Utilities Fight To Supply Conyers' Power

By United Press International
A dispute between the Loup and Cornhusker Public Power Districts on which will supply electricity to race horse owner Don Conyers at a location east of Columbus has been appealed to the State Supreme Court.
Conyers applied to Loup even though the land is located within the Cornhusker service area.
Subsequently, a request for a waiver to service area restrictions was applied for by Loup. Loup said the practice was common.
However, Cornhusker rejected the waiver and the matter was filed with the State Power Review Commission. During arguments before the commission, which ultimately sustained Cornhusker's position, the main issue was keeping the integrity of OP service areas.
In appealing to the Supreme Court, Loup contends the finding was in error.
The evidence, district attorneys told the high court, contained "several serious misstatements of fact and conclusions of law."

"Under such circumstance, it is clear that the order is not sustained by competent and relevant evidence and should be reversed," the attorneys said.
For one thing, the attorneys told the court the Power Review Board failed in not giving more weight in particular to Cornhusker's handling of service for farm irrigation customers, even though Conyers simply wanted service for his tables and possibly a home at some future time.
Cornhusker, the Loup attorneys said, has between 150 and 200 customers waiting for irrigation service. Further, the attorneys said, "It admits that it serves only 40 to 50 of these customers each year, indicating that at the extreme it could be up to five years before an irrigation customer received service."

"Cornhusker argues for the integrity of its service area, and yet under the facts it is more than happy to permit Loup to serve irrigation customers and others in the vicinity of the Conyers property and has, in fact, granted many waivers to Loup over the past several years," the attorneys said.
That means, the attorneys told the court, "Cornhusker, therefore, picks and chooses its customers, taking the ones who are easier to serve."
In addition, the attorneys said the Loup lines are currently closer to the Conyers property than are the Cornhusker lines. Therefore, the attorneys said, service by Cornhusker would "involve wasteful and unwarranted duplication."

Also at issue was an indication by Cornhusker that they would waive certain line installation costs in Conyer's case.
Loup attorneys said it would be a mistake to allow that to happen because other customers are not granted waivers for such costs. Allowing a waiver in Conyer's case, the attorneys said, "would create and foster future conflict" and would be contrary to policy laws governing management of public power districts.

Dodge County Taxpayers Ruled Still Liable

The attorney general's office has held that some Dodge County taxpayers are still liable for school taxes even though the levy wasn't included in the original 1974 tax bill.
The question of whether the county could go back and collect those taxes was raised by T. W. Vrana, Dodge County attorney.

Involved was a case in which a four-mill levy for school district 62's sinking fund was duly approved but erroneously left off the tax statements. Vrana wanted to know if the error could be corrected and the money collected.
Ralph H. Gillan, assistant attorney general, said it appeared the levy was properly authorized and, therefore, the money could still be collected.

"The taxpayers have not been relieved of their obligation to pay the taxes levied against their property," Gillan said. "New statements should be sent out, showing the omitted levy."

Firm Settles Most Home, Car Claims

The nation's largest car and home insurer said Monday it had settled nearly all its losses incurred in Omaha's May 6 killer tornadoes and hailstorm.
State Farm Insurance Co. said claim commitments for cars and homes totaled nearly $3 million so far. It said 90 outstanding dwelling claims, including 20 total losses, will result in an additional $2.75 million in claim payments.
Loren L. Andrews, vice president of State Farm's west central regional office in Lincoln, said the firm has settled 98% of its car losses and 83% of its dwelling losses.
Andrews said 2,150 of the company's 2,200 car losses have been settled, and of these, 1,400 were tornado claims handled in less than two weeks.
Of the 1,370 dwelling losses reported as of June 3, Andrews said 1,276 have been examined and 1,144 have been paid.
Andrews said the company's 19-member disaster crew remains in operation and urged policyholders who haven't reported their losses to contact their agents as soon as possible.

State Is Sued In Man's Death In UNO Mishap

An Ashland woman has filed a $925,000 claim against the state in connection with her husband's death in a construction accident on the University of Nebraska at Omaha campus last year.
The claim was filed by Mrs. Doris L. Richard, 45, with the State Claims Board.
Her husband, John E. Richard, fell five floors from a scaffolding on Oct. 17, 1974, as he was working on a new classroom building at the UNO campus. He died on Nov. 9.
According to a form filed by the woman's attorney, the accident "was the result of violations of state safety codes."
According to information provided to the Claims Board, Richard was knocked from the scaffolding at the fifth floor level when a concrete soffit came loose.

Omaha's 'Bus Family' Back In The Limelight

Omaha (AP) — Remember the Omaha "bus family" which gained national attention last September when they couldn't find a home?

Well, they are getting more attention, this time from irate neighbors and Omaha police.

For two months last year, Mr. and Mrs. Marion Roberts and their seven children lived in a battered, 12-year-old school bus.

Because the family had no permanent address, the children, who ranged in age from 7 to 15, could not attend school.

Roberts, then 36, said the family was forced to move into the bus after vandals broke the windows in their rented house.

and he could not find a landlord who would accept a family with seven children.

After a story published in a local newspaper, Mrs. Quain Bragg of Omaha offered to rent a three-bedroom home to the family.

The Roberts family was overjoyed at the offer, and accepted, but now the deal has soured some, and Mrs. Bragg says she has been getting calls about the family.

"I don't know what to do about it. The only thing I can do is serve them with an eviction notice," said Mrs. Bragg, who rented the house to Roberts for $100 per month.

Texas, Oklahoma Wheat Being Stored, Not Sold

Texas and Oklahoma farmers are holding tight to early harvested wheat, apparently due to low prices, according to sources in the Kansas City grain market.

The first few days of wheat harvest in Oklahoma are said to be producing very few cash sales of wheat to local elevators.

Troy Chapman, manager of the Farmers Co-op Elevator at Vernon, Tex., described the situation as "the greatest and tightest farm holding of new crop stocks (of wheat) that I have ever seen."

Of 100,000 bushels taken at the elevator from combines less than 5% has been sold for cash — with the rest going into storage.

Quality of the wheat harvested thus far has been good with protein tests showing 13.2% for dark hard wheat and 12.4% for protein hard wheat. Yields around the Vernon area are averaging about 25 bushels to the acre, which is about four bushels better than had been expected.

D. A. Woodson, assistant manager of the Farmers Co-op Elevator at Fredrick, Okla., reported receiving 200,000 bushels of wheat with about 20% of it sold under pre-harvest agreements. Very few new sales at harvest were reported with most farmers electing to store wheat rather than sell it.

The Union Equity elevator at Fort Worth also reported 169,000 bushels for wheat received, mostly for storage.

Moariss' Queen Greeted By Pope

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope Paul VI praised the traditions and ancient customs of the Moariss natives of New Zealand on Monday as he received their queen Te Atairangikaahu and her husband.

"In you," the Pope said, "we honor respected traditions and age-old customs which have become the object of admiration beyond the limits of your native land and beyond the cultural circle of your people."

Residents in the South Omaha neighborhood are now blaming the family for a rash of brick and glass throwing, harassing telephone calls, vandalism, fights and verbal abuse.

Roberts, a heavy equipment operator, and his wife have denied the allegations, saying both sons blamed for much of the trouble were not home at the time of the alleged incidents.

Police have been summoned to the neighborhood dozens of times, residents say.

Last Monday, according to police records, the couple's 15-year-old son was taken into custody for allegedly throwing bricks at a neighbor's home.

The case has since been referred to Juvenile Court, and the youth released in his parents custody. Douglas County officials said.

The boy denied throwing the bricks, according to Deputy County Atty. Steven Renteria, and said he wasn't at home when the incidents allegedly occurred.

Another police report said officers had been called to the neighborhood "many" times, and that the "Roberts parents do nothing about the trouble their children cause. There has been much damage suffered" by neighbors.

Roberts claims that "someone has a grudge against us," and is damaging the properties in the area.

He pointed out that three of the windows in his home have also been broken.

Neighbors also say there have been four fires at the Roberts house since the family moved in, including one in which the Roberts car burned.

UNL DANCERS . . . perform at Nebraska City chautauqua.

Reborn Chautauqua Phenomenon Tinged With Memory, Imagination

By GORDON WINTERS

Southeast Nebraska Bureau

Nebraska City — When the platform manager asked those who had been to a chautauqua in their childhood to stand, it seemed like half the audience rose.

For them the look at the reborn phenomenon of the late 1800's and early 1900's was tinged with memory.

For the other half of the audience — as the afternoon eased on it was much more than half — its first look at a tent chautauqua was tinged with imagination.

It seemed like the Pintos and Mustangs outside the tent should have been real ones. The Buicks should have been buckboards.

Imagination made the setting of the tents of the chautauqua, in a wide field surrounded by lush trees, pastoral enough to put technology far out of mind.

Imagination brought a sense of a different tempo, when families traveled long distances for their entertainment and, therefore, wanted it to last a long while.

And since they wanted it to last a long while, they wanted it to be varied. And since too much pure entertainment was probably unwholesome, they wanted a little edification thrown in.

What they got was music, drama, dance, debate and lectures. What you get in Nebraska City stays pretty true to that formula.

Monday you got the fresh-faced, talented young singers and dancers of the University of Nebraska's Scarlet and Cream. You got university dance students and faculty members in a performance that finally drew applause from men with white foreheads and cheeks like tanned leather.

You got Prot Richard Thill discussing on folklore. You got the "cool and uncollected" picking of the Blue Grass Crusade.

You got Emmy Award winner Charles Kuralt of CBS telling the audience that he is optimistic about the future of the country.

"On The Road" he said, he finds that the country is ahead of its government, and that humaneness, decency and the will for justice are growing stronger.

People in America, Kuralt said, care for the country and seek leadership to help them heal its wounds. The source of his optimism, he said is historical.

You also got a Nostalgia Tent, where Mrs. Elizabeth Bebout and church group members sat together quilting and visiting and where Jessie Yost was making dolls out of apples.

Chautauqua visitors also found a Junior Chautauqua, with comedy, music, puppet shows and more.

There was also a "story lady" with her own tent, refreshment stands, and homemade box lunches for sale at the high school gym.

Tuesday, the last day, of Chautauqua — 1975, the visitor will get much the same kind of fare.

The last day features cooking and gardening demonstrations at 9 a.m., a band concert at 12 noon, the Scarlet and Cream singers, a re-enactment of the debate on where to locate the State Capitol featuring Omaha Sen. John Cavanaugh and Lt. Gov. Gerald Whelan and the UNL woodwind quintet in concert.

There will be a debate on freedom of the press, Tommy Cash and the Tom Cats. Portraits, an original full-length musical by David Bell, a discourse on acupuncture and more.

3 Colleges Form Sharing Alliance

By DEAN TERRILL
Southeast Nebraska Bureau

Kearney — A uniquely designed alliance of three, Nebraska institutions of higher learning was announced Monday at Kearney State College.

The new entity will be known as the Nebraska Plains Alliance of Colleges (N-PAC). Joining in the announcement besides KSC were McCook Community College, Mid-Plains Community College at North Platte and the Mid-Plains Technical Community College area.

Under the plan, which grew out of a year's study, the participating schools will share faculty, physical facilities and fiscal resources.

According to Dr. Doyle Howitt of KSC, chairman of a 10-member coordinating council, N-PAC will allow students on the various campuses to take work through any of the participating schools. The plan will enable them to satisfy "most or all of the KSC baccalaureate requirements."

"Many residents of the Nebraska plains are unable for a variety of reasons to continue their studies on the campus of a four-year college," said Dr. Howitt, assistant vice president for academic affairs at KSC. "These institutions will cooperate to offer selected programs and services in North Platte and McCook through N-PAC."

To be implemented next fall, the program will offer classes jointly in a number of fields, mostly academic. Among them are medical and health services, law enforcement, business, vocational education and teacher education. Workshops and seminars will be scheduled as well as conventional classes.

According to Dr. Howitt, the venture is the first of its kind in the Midwest. Besides the classes to be held on the various campuses, some will be scheduled at various communities in the 18-county Mid-Plains region.

At the press conference besides Dr. Howitt were President Brendan McDonald of KSC; Dr. Bill Hasemeyer, president of the Mid-Plains Technical Community College area; and John Harms, president of McCook Community College.

In addition to Dr. Howitt and Harms, the council includes the following members: Kenneth Aten, president of Mid-Plains Community College at North Platte; Dr. James Ihrig, dean of instruction at Mid-Plains Community College; James Doyle, vocational dean of instruction at Mid-Plains.

Also on the council are the deans of four academic schools at KSC. They are Dr. Floyd Kruebeck, School of Business and Technology; Dr. Harry Hoffmann, School of Fine Arts and Humanities; Dr. Ole Kolstad, School of Natural and Social Sciences; and Dr. Leonard Skov, School of Education.

Omaha Lawyer J.A.C. Kennedy Dies At Age 99

Omaha (AP) — J. A. C. Kennedy, who practiced law until the age of 96, died Sunday in an Omaha hospital. He was 99.

Kennedy, one of nine Nebraska Spanish-American War veterans, was the senior partner in the law firm of Kennedy, Holland, DeLacy and Svoboda and was a member of the Mutual of Omaha board of directors for 50 years.

Kennedy walked three miles to work every day while in his mid-90s.

He was a native of Omaha and graduated from the University of Nebraska School of Law in 1900. Kennedy served as a lieutenant in the Spanish-American War and was elected to the Legislature in 1903.

Survivors include a daughter, Mrs. James Hauck of Monmouth Beach, N.J., nine grandchildren and 10 great-grandchildren.

Poem Came From 'Alice In Wonderland'

By JOANNE FARRIS

A reader writes: "Have read many of your articles with interest, but today's sparked me to write to you, which is something I have never done. You quoted a poem sent to you from a K. V. Campbell of Sidney, N.Y. Neither Mr. Campbell nor yourself researched enough to find the author of the poem. What a shame! Have you never read Lewis Carroll's "Alice in Wonderland"? That's where it came from.

"It all comes about when Alice is talking to a Caterpillar.
... the Caterpillar said:
Repeat 'You are old, Father William ...'
Alice folded her hands and began:
'You are old, Father William,' the young man said,
'And your hair had become very white;
And yet you incessantly stand on your head —
Do you think, at your age, it is right?'
'In my youth,' Father William replied to his son,
I feared it might injure the brain;
But now that I'm perfectly sure I have none,
Why, I do it again and again.'
'You are old,' said the youth, 'as I mentioned before,
And have grown most uncommonly fat;
Yet you turned a back-somersault in at the door —
Pray, what is the reason of that?'
'In my youth,' said the sage, as he shook his gray locks,
I kept all my limbs very supple
By the use of this ointment —
one shilling the box —
Allow me to sell you a couple.'

'You are old,' said the youth, 'and your jaws are too weak
For anything tougher than suet;
Yet you turned a back-somersault in at the door —
Pray, what is the reason of that?'
'In my youth,' said the sage, as he shook his gray locks,
I kept all my limbs very supple
By the use of this ointment —
one shilling the box —
Allow me to sell you a couple.'

Yet you finished the goose, with the bones and the beak;
Pray how did you manage to do it?'
'In my youth,' said his father, 'I took to the law,
And argued each case with my wife;
And the muscular strength which it gave to my jaw,
Has lasted the rest of my life.'

'You are old,' said the youth; 'one would hardly suppose that your eye was as steady as ever;
Yet you balance an eel on the end of your nose —
What made you so awfully clever?'
'I have answered three questions, and that is enough,'
Said his father; 'don't give yourself airs.
Do you think I can listen all day to such stuff?
Be off, or I'll kick you down stairs!'
'That is not said right,' said the Caterpillar.
'Not quite right, I'm afraid,' said Alice timidly;
'Some of the words have got altered.'
'It is wrong from beginning to end,' said the Caterpillar decidedly, and there was silence for some minutes.' "

My warm thanks to Mrs. John E. Miller of Indianapolis, Ind., for taking the time and trouble to write out the full quotation. Every reader will have a smile today and a happy recollection of bygone times thanks to Mrs. Miller's kindness. It's nice to think how one person's gift can enrich all who read it.

Deadlock Threatens Funding For Food Stamps, GI Checks

Washington (UPI) — The House and Senate deadlocked again Monday on a $15 billion money bill while veterans in school continued to go without benefits and the food stamp program was threatened with a shutdown.

The House voted 273 to 101 to send the big appropriations measure back to the Senate and insist on the $5 million it proposed for improving railroad track rather than the $175 million the Senate said should be spent.

The Senate can accept the House figure, or reject it and send it back to the House, or reject it ask for a new conference to work out a compromise.

The bill is needed to continue funding a score of government programs through June 30. The Veterans Administration said it borrowed from its pension funds June 1 to pay some $90,000 of the 1.4 million veterans getting educational benefits, but the other 500,000 will go checkless until the bill is passed.

Agriculture Department spokesmen said the big food stamp program, with its 20 million participants, might also run out of money before the week is out. There is $884 million in the embattled measure for food stamps.

White House press secretary Ron Nessen said President Ford is concerned that Social Security pensioners, GI Bill users and food stamp program recipients may miss billions because of congressional failure to appropriate the money fast enough.

Nessen said the reason for the delay of Congress is that the House, like Ford, does not want the bill to include money for railroad roadbed improvement, a program Nessen said the administration "feels would be frittering money away."

"But the Senate is insisting on keeping in that provision," Nessen said.

The bill has bounced back and forth between the House and Senate after the later voted May 22 to put $700 million in the measure for improvement of railroad tracks. The House then voted to put in $5 million and then the Senate dropped its figure to $175 million, which the House rejected.

Chairman George Mahon of the House Appropriations Committee, manager of the House bill, urged rejection of the Senate's figure and said the money "is a handout for the railroads."

Mahon also objected that no legislative committee has authorized the aid, which would be in the form of grants, but that such an authorization measure is working its way through the House Commerce Committee and funding should wait for that measure.

Sen. John McClellan, D-Ark, chairman of the Senate Appropriations Committee and manager of the measure in the Senate, has insisted that the money is urgently needed to put between 36,000 and 40,000 idled rail workers back on the job.

POSTCARD by Stan Deleplane

San Francisco — No summer season without its miracle pills. "Take two before you go to bed. We'll see later whether to increase the amount or decrease it," said the doctor.
The pills are to take me out of orbit. A kind of re-entry thing. Like men come down from the moon.
At one time I just took a simple aspirin tablet. But noblesse oblige. If you can't drop a few pills on the table at lunch time, people think you're not doing too well. The banker hesitates about lending you money.
The man on the stool next to me drops a redbird on the bar and says: "Doc gave me these yesterday. I feel better already."
He pops it in. Boots it downhill with a slug from the martini glass.
I took out two yellowbirds and showed them to him.

I said: "I take them at bedtime. Any earlier I might crash and burn."
Thus we pass the Happy Hour. Miraculously propped up against Fate.

Sunny days around Snug Harbor. A pair of birds — don't know what kind but they've got DC-3 wings — built a nest under the dock where they park small boats.
When the black cats go outside, the birds dive on them screaming. They've got the cats faked out. They lay back their ears and come back in the house. Determination is what wins. That's a thought for today.

Fortunately, I have the health of a trout. (A long life and a moist mouth.) Except for a back like limp spaghetti and a crackling in my neck, I feel fine.

An opener with chicken pox was my first experience with pills. Actually it was a powder folded in a paper that looked like a white gum wrapper.
"Hold your nose and open your mouth," said my grandmother.

She poured it on my tongue and immediately put a glass of water to my lips. "Swallow."
Medicine came like that. It tasted awful. Nobody took that stuff except in the worst emergencies.

There were no miracle pills in those simple days. Survivors were made of stern stuff. The medicine powders alone were enough to lay you low.

I graduated to measles, mumps and whooping cough with only passing attention from doctors.

"Keep him in bed for a couple of days and get plenty of fluid in him," said the doctor feeling my pulse. "Lot of the pesky stuff going around now."

Diagnosis and treatment were done at home often enough. "Feed a cold and starve a fever," said my grandmother. She had a lot of wise sayings at the tip of her tongue.

All of our family were teetotalers. Rum was a demon. The drunkard's downfall started with a single glass of beer. We kept a small bottle of whiskey in the medicine chest. But it was to hold in your mouth if you had a toothache.

Saxe Pleads Guilty

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — In a surprise move, Susan Edith Saxe, antiwar radical and militant feminist, pleaded guilty Monday to bank robbery and theft from a federal arsenal.

The sudden withdrawal of an innocent plea on the day her trial was to start was part of a deal with the government guaranteeing that she will not be compelled, even under a grant of immunity, to testify in any proceeding about events that occurred from 1969 until now.

Miss Saxe, a 26-year-old Brandeis University honor graduate from Albany, N.Y., said she did not regret the 1970 crimes to which she was pleading guilty.

"That armed struggle against the American state was a valid and necessary escalation of the politics of the '60s," she in a defiant statement before U.S. District Court Judge Alfred L. Luongo.

The government recommended a prison sentence of not more than 10 years for the $6,240 holdup of the Bell Savings and Loan Association in Philadelphia and two years, to run concurrently with the 10, for theft and related crimes at the Newburyport, Mass., arsenal.

Luongo said he would delay sentencing, as requested by opposing lawyers, until she is tried in Massachusetts on state charges of murder and bank robbery. These result from the Sept. 26, 1970, holdup in Boston that netted three men and two women $26,000 and resulted in the slaying of Patrolman Walter Schroeder.

Miss Saxe could be sentenced to up to 40 years in jail and fined up to $30,000 for the crimes to which she pleaded guilty, Luongo said.

Moynihan Confirmed

Washington (UPI) — Daniel Patrick Moynihan, who suggested the United States withdraw its support of the United Nations if Israel is expelled from the world body, was confirmed by the Senate Monday as the new American ambassador to the U.N.

The Senate also confirmed the nomination of Malcolm Toon as U.S. ambassador to Israel.

Moynihan, 48, a former counselor to President Richard M. Nixon and ambassador to India from 1973 until early 1975, has been publicly critical of the role of the so-called Third World countries in the United Nations, especially moves to unseat Israel and South Africa in the upcoming General Assembly session in September.

Moynihan suggested during his Senate confirmation hearings last week that the United States should freeze its financial contributions to the United Nations and give up participation in the General Assembly's work if the proposal to expel Israel succeeds.

State Wrestling Meet Expanded, Moving To NU Fieldhouse

By CHUCK SINCLAIR
Prep Sports Writer
When the state high school wrestling championships move, with construction cooperation, into the new NU Fieldhouse next February, an additional day of competition will accompany the meets' exit from Pershing Auditorium.

Les Chamberlin, executive secretary of the Nebraska School Activities Association, (NSAA), said Monday the change from the usual two-day format to three had been approved by the NSAA in its Board of Control meeting held at Kearney last week.

In the past, first round matches were held on Friday afternoon following the morning weigh-ins. Under the new format, that Chamberlin said will be used regardless of the status of the new fieldhouse, the start of the meet will advance 24 hours with the weigh-ins conducted Thursday morning and the first round beginning in the afternoon.

With the first round completed on Thursday, Friday will be utilized for second round action at noon and the first consolation round beginning immediately after the conclusion of the second round.

The semifinals will then be moved to Friday night with the consolation finals set for Saturday afternoon and finals for Saturday evening.

More wrestling changes were made in the "package deal" with four qualifiers now becoming eligible for state meet competition in four districts from each class. This advances the number of qualifiers to 16 in each class, compared with 12 from past meets.

Another wrestling move is still being studied according to Chamberlin. This one concerns the awarding of medals for state meet finishes with the possibility of six medals being given in the future with the increasing number of participants.

The final wrestling decision concerned the dropping of weight classes before the state meet (wrestling at a heavier weight all season and then losing weight to wrestle lower before state).

Adopting from a suggestion of the National Federation, the NSAA voted a wrestler may not move down in weight class after the second week in January and must have wrestled five times previously in the weight class he intends to wrestle in districts at.

The boards time wasn't limited to just wrestling however, as other important decisions were reached concerning both boys and girls athletics.

Here is a quick rundown of the decisions made:

—The mile run will be added to the 1976 girls state track meet with the meet remaining a one-day event. Chamberlin said the next probable step would be to add a longer hurdle event.

The possibility of experimenting with the 330-yard intermediate hurdles to the boys program was also discussed.

—When the girls basketball program moves to district and state playoffs in two years, the number of games allowed for girls will be increased from the 12 allotted now, to the equal number that the boys are allowed.

"Beyond the 75-76 school year," Chamberlin said. "We are planning to have our boys state basketball district and state one week later. This would give us a week just prior to the boys districts for the girls state tournament."

—In an earlier classification meeting, the possibility of using a single classification system was discussed that would classify schools by total enrollment or ratio putting the whole school in the same class not splitting the boys and girls in to two separate classes.

Chamberlin said the group would hold another classification meeting September 10 to act further on that subject.

—Sites and dates for next years state championships were determined with the following decisions made:

October: 16-17—Boys tennis (Omaha Dewey Park) Girls golf (Omaha Benson) 24—Boys cross country (Kearney State)

November: 7-8—Girls swimming (Lincoln East) 13-14—Boys gymnastics (Lincoln High) 14-15—Girls volleyball (Scottsbluff)

February: 19-20-21—Boys wrestling (Lincoln NU Fieldhouse) 27-28—Boys swimming (Lincoln East)

March: 11-12-13—Boys basketball (Lincoln NU Fieldhouse)

May: 14—Boys sand greens golf (not set) 14-15—Girls tennis (not set) 15—Girls track (not set) 21—Boys grass greens golf (not set) 21-22—Boys track (not set) 25-26—Boys baseball (Class A Ralston Class B Lincoln)

Rangers Blast Red Sox, 12-4

By The Associated Press
Jim Sundberg's first career grand slam led a home-run parade by Texas Monday night and the Rangers blasted the Boston Red Sox 12-4.

Toby Harrah and Jim Spencer added two-run homers and Burroughs chipped with a solo shot, his 14th homer of the year and his fifth in the last six games. All of Boston's run came on Bernie Carbo's grand slam in the sixth inning.

Sundberg unloaded his fifth homer of the year in the second inning. Burroughs hit one in the fifth and Harrah and Spencer connected in the eighth.

In Monday night's other American League games it was Kansas City 5, Detroit 2; California 5, New York 2; Milwaukee 1, Chicago 0; Minnesota 11, Cleveland 10 in 11 innings, and Oakland 4, Baltimore 3 in 15 innings.

Pittsburgh's rout of the Reds. Ted Simmons' tie-breaking two-run homer gave the Cards their victory and ruined Blue Moon Odum's debut with the Braves.

Andy Messersmith pitched a four-hitter and struck out 12 Expos en route to his second straight shutout and fourth this year for the Dodgers. Jerry Morales tie-breaking double for Chicago saddled the Astros with their ninth straight loss.

Oklahoma scored the winning run in the second inning when Terry Jolly, who singled, scored on an error. The Sooners added four more runs in the third on two singles, two walks and a double steal. With Bill Severns stealing home.

Oklahoma added two more runs in the ninth on singles by Keith Drumright and Kelly

No Sale Sign Put On Orioles

BALTIMORE (UPI) — Jerold Hoffberger, struggling for some time in his attempts to sell his Baltimore Orioles team, gave up his attempt Monday to sell the club to a syndicate headed by Bill Veeck and began negotiations with city officials to extend the team's lease at Memorial Stadium through next year, a team spokesman said.

General manager Frank Cashen said the negotiations with Veeck were terminated Monday, but gave no reason.

He did say that Hoffberger had told Veeck that problems concerning the transaction were "difficult to overcome."

He said team officials have already begun talks with the city on the use of Memorial Stadium and hoped that terms can be negotiated through 1976 which were similar to past financial arrangements.

Hoffberger has been trying to sell the team for several months.

The group headed by Veeck has been the primary group interested in buying the team, but Hoffberger reportedly was asking for financial terms the group could not meet.

Amos Otis hit a two-run, inside-the-park home run in the eighth inning to cap a three-run outburst that gave Kansas City its victory Detroit. Bruce Bochte's tie-breaking pinch-single off Cathish Hunter in the ninth inning helped California snap the Yankees' eight-game winning streak.

Darrell Porter's ninth-inning homer off reliever Rich Gossage carried Milwaukee and extended the White Sox' losing streak to six games. Danny Thompson's 11th-inning single completed a Minnesota comeback from a four-run deficit and lifted the Twins past Cleveland. Bill North walked, was bunted to second and scored on Joe Rudi's single to carry Oakland past the Orioles.

Dave Parker and Willie Stargell hit three-run homers and Richie Zisk added three RBI with a solo homer and a single in Miss Evert, virtually unbeatable on the slow clay courts of the Roland Garros Stadium, lost just five games in defeating Renata Tomanova, a member of Czechoslovakia's victorious Federation Cup team, 6-3, 6-2, while Janet Newberry of La Jolla, Calif., beat Holland's Elly Appel 6-3, 6-3, and Donna Ganz of Miami upset Australia's Dianne Fromholtz, 6-3, 6-4.

In two other men's singles matches, Guillermo Vilas of Argentina gained the quarterfinals by beating Jan Kodes of Czechoslovakia, a two-time champion here, 6-1, 6-4, 6-2. He was joined by Onny Parun of New Zealand, a 6-2, 2-6, 3-6, 6-2 8-6 winner over John Alexander of Australia.

Dibbs, 24, hit some great clutch shots to eliminate Antonio Zugarelli of Italy, 6-4, 7-5, 6-4, coming from behind in both the first two sets. In the next round Dibbs faces Mexico's Raul Ramirez, the reigning Italian champion, who defeated the last of the Frenchmen, Francois Jauffret, 6-2, 6-1, 6-4.

The 10th seeded Dibbs, who is ranked 11th nationally, trailed 0-2 in the first set and 1-4 in the second before he got the measure of the Italian, passing him at the net as Zugarelli moved in to volley behind short approach shots.

Ramirez, 21, forced errors from the 33-year-old Jauffret. The Frenchman's game picked up in the third set and the crowd cheered when he saved two match points, but on the third Ramirez closed out the match when Jauffret was unable to pick up a half volley hit to his feet.

Miss Ganz, a 20-year-old criminology student at Miami Day Junior College, played steadily from the baseline in defeating Miss Fromholtz. She won the first set comfortably and led 5-2 in the second before the Australian hit back by winning two game, but made no mistake in the 10th game when she served out the match.

Miss Ganz, ranked 36th nationally, talked more about Wimbledon after her match instead of her defeat of Miss Fromholtz. "I have to qualify even though I've beaten 19 of the girls who gained direct entry," she said. "I gained the second round in Rome and the quarters here, but still I must play in a qualifying event."

"But I've come a long way since then."

Miss Evert's next opponent is Kazuko Swarnatsu of Japan, a 7-6, 6-3 victor over Fiorella Bonicelli of Uruguay in Monday's fourth round.

Other women to advance to the quarters were second-seeded Martina Navratilova of Czechoslovakia who defeated Pam Teeguarden of Los Angeles in three sets, 6-2, 2-6, 6-3; Olga Morozova, the third seed from Russia, who destroyed Briton Sue Baker, 6-1, 6-0, and Raquel Giscafe of Argentina, a 6-2, 6-3 winner of Russia's Marina Kroshina.

Bosox Recall Hurler Burton

BOSTON (AP) — Left-hander Jim Burton, who pitched a no-hitter for Pawtucket against Tidewater in the International League Sunday, was recalled Monday night by the Boston Red Sox.

Burton, a No. 1 draft choice in 1971 after graduating from the University of Michigan, had an 8-2 record with a 1.53 earned run average in 12 starts for Pawtucket this year.

To make room on the 25-player roster, the Red Sox returned infielder Buddy Hunter to Pawtucket. Hunter, who appeared in just one game since being called up from Pawtucket May 29, cleared waivers.

Trevino's score means the men will have to post scores of 5- or better under par to earn their "I Beat The Champ" souvenir award. Haynie's score makes it a bit easier for the ladies to win their prize. Her score was one over ladies' par.

National Golf Day is the game's major annual charity fund drive, sponsored by the PGA of America. Contributions of a dollar or more per player are distributed through the National Golf Fund among a variety of golf-related charities from caddie college scholarships to veteran's rehabilitation golf and turf research endowments.

Next time you play a round, sign up and have fun while still contributing to charity. You could win a nice prize, both for you and your club professional.

Some other golf notes: The Lincoln Women's Municipal Golf Association will hold an invitational at Holmes Golf Course June 24. . . The women have started their series of practice rounds at the various local courses in preparation for the City Tourney, which will be June 30, July 1 and 2.

Snider to gain the final runs.

OU had had trouble on the baselines in its opening game loss to Texas but sparkled against the Hurons, stealing five times in five attempts.

"I was just throwing fastballs and curve balls and they seemed to work really well," said Kunkler. "Our fielding really helped me out even though we had our errors."

"I had faced about half of their starting lineup last summer when I played in a semi-pro league in Detroit," Kunkler said, "and that may have been the reason Coach Semore (Enos) decided to start with me."

"At times, Kunkler was really overpowering," said Semore. "He was just tough with good stuff."

"I was real pleased with the aggressiveness our team showed at the plate and on the base paths," Semore said OU collected 10 hits.

"For the Arizona State game Wednesday we will go with Bob Shirley," Semore said. The Sooners split two games with the Sun Devils losing, 4-3, and winning, 11-2, earlier this year.

Texas blasted Pirate starting pitcher Dan Morgiello for nine runs, three of them earned, and gained another run to take a 10-1 lead in the first inning.

In the first inning Mike Anderson scored twice and hit a triple. Keith Moreland hit a single and a double, scoring twice, Rick Bradley singled twice and Micky Reichenbach and Garry Pyka both doubled.

But Seton Hall, which eliminated Florida State Sunday, 11-1, was not about to give up

The Pirates tallied three more runs in the sixth when Ricky Sposta doubled in Mike Rota, who walked and went to third on a passed ball. Sposta then scored on a passed ball. Rico Bellini scored the third run in the inning, after walking and gaining third on another Texas error.

Then Seton Hall loaded the bases as Greg Jamison reached first on a fielder's choice followed by a single by Cereone and a walk to Tom Kober.

Texas coach Cliff Gustafson then brought in reliever Ray, who struck out the next batter, and got the following batsman to fly out to center.

Besides a home run hit by Sposta, the Pirates could not get another runner on base as Ray silenced the Seton Hall bats in the eighth and ninth.

"Ray really did a great job coming in there with the bases loaded," said Gustafson. "He did the same thing in the playoffs for us."

"I think we just kind of let down when we got that big of a lead in the early going," Gustafson said. "We lost our edge and they gained the momentum and we couldn't stop them. We have played worse, like yesterday when we lost to Arizona State 5-2, but we came close today."

Gustafson congratulated the Pirates. "I told them I admired their courage and fight, and they won the respect and admiration of everybody here. I also told them I was sorry it happened to them, but the guts they showed here will be remembered here for a long time."

Seton Hall coach Mike Shepard, whose team closed its season with a 32-10 record, said, "We just never quit, and I'm proud of our team."

"The amazing thing was that we were hitting good pitching," Shepard said of Texas starter Martin Flores who holds a 0.98 ERA and Terry Ray with a 1.80 mark.

"I was really impressed with the job Cereone (who went 4 for 5) and Sposta did. They never hung their heads," Shepard said.

Mexico's Paul Ramirez stretches for a return shot in a win over France's Francois Jauffret.

Complaint Filed Against NFL

NEW YORK (UPI) — The National Labor Relations Board filed a complaint Monday charging the National Football League and its member teams with unfair labor practices resulting from the players' strike last year.

The NLRB scheduled July 21 for a hearing in Manhattan Federal Court into the charges as well as allegations that the NFL failed to negotiate with the Players Association before adopting the sudden death and punt rule changes.

As the result of the strike last July, the complaint said, the Atlanta Falcons traded Kenneth Reeves, the Washington Eagles discharged Kermit Alexander and the Houston Oilers waived Bill Curry.

The three clubs, the complaint said, took the action because all three players were officers of the Players Association.

In addition, the complaint said, the Dallas Cowboys, St. Louis Cardinals, the Kansas City Chiefs and others refused to bargain collectively. They kept under surveillance the players' meetings and refused association representatives admission to preseason training camps.

The complaint said the league and its member teams discriminated in hiring and conditions of employment of players to discourage membership in a labor organization.

Originally, there were 32 charges made by the union against the teams, but 17 were dropped, without a hearing, by Region 2 of the NLRB.

"We are not surprised that 17 of the union's original 32 allegations have been dismissed without a hearing," said Sargent Karch, the executive director of the NFL Management Council, "including the often-repeated claim that there was something improper about the contractual termination of health insurance in the spring of 1974."

"We are confident that our position on the other 15, nine of which relate to requests for information only, will be upheld by the administrative law judge," he said.

Ed Garvey, the executive secretary of the Players Association said he was gratified that the NLRB had issued the complaint.

"Most encouraging of all," Garvey said, "was the issuance of complaints for illegal discrimination against the president of the union Bill Curry, and the two vice-presidents, Kermit Alexander and Tom Keating, as well as Atlanta player representative Ken Reeves."

Carew Tops AL Voting

NEW YORK (AP) — Second baseman Rod Carew of the Minnesota Twins, who is having a tremendous year at bat, is easily the leading vote-getter in the early balloting for the American League All-Star team, the baseball commissioner's office announced Monday.

Carew, hitting 418 going into Monday night's games, has 81,757 votes among the early returns. The runnerup at second base is Bobby Grich of Baltimore with 12,727. The second top vote-getter is outfielder Reggie Jackson of Oakland with 49,335.

Other leaders were catcher Thurman Munson of New York, 37,716, first baseman George Scott of Milwaukee, 25,038, third baseman Aurelio Rodriguez of Detroit, 27,092 and shortstop Bert Campaneris of Oakland, 42,471.

The first National League tabulations will be announced Friday.

Expos' McNally Retires

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Dave McNally, one of the aces of the Baltimore Oriole pitching staff for 12 years, advised the Montreal Expos Monday that he was retiring from baseball because of disappointment with his performance this year.

McNally, 32, who was traded by Baltimore to Montreal this past winter, telephoned Manager Gene Mauch and General Manager Jim Fanning from his home in Lutherville, Md., to inform them of his decision.

"Gene and I talked to him and tried to dissuade him, Fanning said.

"We did our very best to convince him that he should continue, but McNally is very disappointed with his performance. He felt he was letting the club down. Dave McNally has a lot of pride but he is certain in his mind this is what he wants to do."

CBS To Show Pele's Debut

NEW YORK (AP) — Fans anxious to see what a multimillion dollar soccer star looks like will get their chance Sunday, when Pele makes his North American Soccer League debut with the New York Cosmos.

CBS announced Monday that it will televise live throughout the United States the game between the Cosmos and the Dallas Tornado from Downing Stadium on Randall's Island scheduled to begin at 3:30 p.m. EDT, Sunday TV Globe will beam it to Brazil and Venezuela.

CBS had signed a contract to televise two NASL soccer games this year, one being the championship final. That, however, was before the world famous Pele agreed to play with the Cosmos.

"I think it's premature and naturally we are very disappointed."

During his 12 seasons with the Orioles, McNally had four 20-game victory seasons in 1968, 1969, 1970 and 1971 and was named to the American League All-Star teams those years.

McNally had a lifetime record of 184 wins and 119 losses and a World Series record with Baltimore of four wins and two defeats.

This season he won three of his first four starts for Montreal, but had lost five out of his last eight starts. His most recent loss was in the first game of a doubleheader against San Diego in Montreal Sunday.

He was traded to Montreal along with pitcher Bill Kirkpatrick and outfielder Rich Coggins in return for outfielder Ken Singleton and pitcher Mike Torrez.

"Maybe now the NFL will at long last bargain in good faith."

Ace At Knolls

Bill Boughtertv fired a hole-in-one Sunday at the Knolls Country Club on the No. 9, 95-yard 11th hole.

Ribicoff Suggests FBI Enforce Law On Drugs

Washington (UPI) — Sen. Abraham Ribicoff, D-Conn., said Monday federal drug law enforcement program has become so mired in bureaucratic feuding and corruption that it should be taken over by the FBI.

Ribicoff made the suggestion at the start of hearings by the Senate permanent subcommittee on investigations into charges the federal war on drugs has been characterized by a longtime pattern of corruption and cover-up.

Chairman Henry Jackson, D-Wash., at the same time cited a "temptation to corruption and payoff" and a "lack of professionalism" in the Drug Enforcement Administration, which was created in July 1973 to control drug abuse.

While stressing that most DEA officials and agents were dedicated and incorruptible, the senators said they would press their investigation and come up with recommendations for improving drug law enforcement.

The General Accounting Office told the panel the federal budget for buying narcotics evidence and information has increased from $775,000 in fiscal year 1969 to an estimated $9 million in fiscal 1976.

Yet only 5% of the "buy" money is ever recovered, GAO said. And if a GAO study in the Los Angeles area is indicative, "purchase funds were generally not leading to the identification and apprehension of higher level traffickers." GAO is Congress' auditing agency.

Dr. Robert DuPont, director of the White House Special Action Office on Drug Abuse Prevention, meanwhile told the committee that the increased availability of heroin and its spread from cities to small towns and suburbia are ominous signs.

Sen. Charles Percy, R-Ill., said the subcommittee staff has received and developed information on allegations of malfeasance and, in some cases, corruption by federal narcotics officials including some who now occupy positions of considerable responsibility.

Two SLA Soldiers' Convicted

SACRAMENTO Calif. (AP) — Two Symbionese Liberation Army soldiers were convicted of murder Monday in the cyanide-bullet assassination of Oakland school Supt. Marcus Foster.

A Superior Court jury also found Russell Little and Joseph Remiro guilty of attempted murder in the wounding of Foster's top aide, Robert Blackburn.

The maximum penalty for the first degree murder conviction in California is life in prison because the Nov. 6, 1973 sniper killing occurred before reinstatement of the state's death penalty.

Remiro, 28, leaned over to his attorney and smiled as the verdict against him was being read. Both defendants smiled as they left the courtroom in the custody of sheriff's deputies.

There was no other show of emotion on the part of either defendant.

One day after the victims were gunned down in a school administration parking lot, the SLA claimed responsibility.

The trial of Little and Remiro was the first involving members of the terrorist SLA which kidnapped newspaper heiress Patricia Hearst three months after Foster's death.

Jury foreman William Sprague said the jury reached its verdict against Remiro, 28, on Sunday during its 10th day of deliberations.

But the jury was divided 9-3 on the Little verdict at that time, he said.

The final jury verdict to convict Little, 25, was returned Monday.

James Jenner, Little's court-appointed public defender immediately filed a motion for a new trial.

I was very disappointed I can't believe it, Jenner said. If there ever was a reason to doubt a case, it was this one.

Superior Court Judge Elvin Sheehy scheduled sentencing for June 27.

The jury has been sifting through seven weeks of testimony in one of the longest deliberations in California history.

Youth Sought In 2 Assaults, Maybe Others

A young teenager and a Lincoln woman were attacked by a young man in separate incidents Sunday morning in Lincoln's near south side.

The suspect's description and method of operation are also similar to two other assaults on Lincoln woman in the same general area last month, police said.

Police are looking for a white man in his late teens or early 20s described as 5 feet 3 inches to 5 feet 5 inches and weighing about 140 pounds. The suspect was wearing blue jeans and a tan T-shirt and was described as having shoulder-length hair, according to police reports.

The man grabbed a 13-year-old Lincoln girl about 7:30 a.m. Sunday then fled when the teenager fought him.

A man fitting the same description, also attacked a 21-year-old woman on her front door step about 8 a.m. Sunday according to police reports.

When the woman fought back, the man ran away shouting, "I'm sorry," police reports said.

Youth Faces Charges In Chase, Fatal Crash

Omaha (UPI) — The Douglas County attorney's office Monday filed formal felony charges against a young Omaha man involved in a weekend traffic chase by police which ended in the death of the passenger in a car authorities said was stolen.

Deputy County Atty. Dan Ryberg said Timony Regan, 18, Omaha, was driving the car when police gave chase in central Omaha after it was reported stolen several blocks away.

Ryberg said Regan faced charges of felony motor vehicle homicide and auto theft, but the exact involvement of Regan or his passenger, Michael R. Nielsen, 17, Omaha, in the theft was uncertain.

The car was chased by police for about 25 blocks before it crashed into a tree and a power pole.

Nielsen and Regan were thrown from the car. Nielsen was killed and Regan remained hospitalized.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE - Here's how to work it: AXYDLBAAXR is LONGFELLOW

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.
